Bad Fruit Year

by Evan Kramer

One of the most popular activities in Port Orford is gardening. This summer has been a horse(radish) of another color out in the vegetable patches and orchards around the area. The three apple trees in my yard have a total of no apples on them this year.

Mirleen O'Hearn, who sells trees and nursery starts, told me the ash storm we had earlier in the year killed some of the cherry trees.

Ray Johnson said his apple trees had no fruit on them this year and his pear trees have only a few pears. He told me the bandtail pigeons were having a field day with his blueberry plants instead of the berries on the madrone trees.

Paul Lee and Rick Hazard both referred to this as a bad year for fruit.

Meivin Sutton of Elephant Rock Farm told me his apple trees had no fruit but plenty of mold on them.

Jim Britell dismissed this as an area to grow fruit with stones in it and said to stick with proven winners like potatoes, peas, lettuce and chard.

Speculation about why this is so, centers on the amount of rain we had this year including a wet April and May. Trees that did blossom saw these blossoms washed off by the rain. Other theories center on a lack of bees due to the wet weather.

Some plants seem to be doing just fine this year. The wild blackberries in our yard look to be a bumper crop. Just yesterday Valerie and I found a couple of ripe ones already.

This year I put in several grape vines which have taken but it'll be at least next year before we find out if they'll have any grapes or not. Yesterday I put in some squash and basil starts which I was given by Bob and Ellen Warning. So, I thought, why not turn over a new leaf and plant them right away. On some other occasions when I've bought or been given starts I've waited too long to plant them. Anyway, I went out in the garden area with a shovel and started digging holes. This was ground that a month ago was saturated with water. Now, after over a month without rain and days of wind the same earth seemed bereft of water and not nearly as easy to dig up. After mixing the turned soil with a secret concoction I get out of my chicken coop consisting of disproportionate amounts of chicken feed, chicken manure and composted plant matter. I planted the Johnson and zucchini squash and the basil plants. I had two interested onlookers the whole time. One was of course Myrtle, our Black Labrador puppy for life and the other was a cat named Feitsheins who must be part dog. Feitsheins does one thing no other cat has done and that's follow along when I go walking in the neighborhood. And not just to the next house over. One walk was a good half mile or more and she followed the whole way. Yesterday when we took a walk after planting I heard the most pitiful meowing and knew all was not well. Finally I spotted her high up in a tree and unwilling to come down. Fortunately she jumped into an-

Basic Yoga by Sandy Eisman

When you woke up this morning were you stiff and sore? Does your neck or lower back ache after sitting at your desk or tractor all day? If so, have you done any yoga lately?

People tend to associate the idea of yoga with acupuncture and Eastern religions but it is simply the practice of gentle stretches accompanied by deep and regular breathing.

There is an excellent yoga class offered by S.W.O.C.C. and taught by Debbie Lohry here in Port Orford. Yoga is so basic it can become part of your everyday routine, even if you're a busy person (the busier you are the more you need it).

I have lower back pain, so before I get up in the morning I lay on my back and pull my knees up to my chest, clasp my arms around my knees and relax. Then, after a minute or so, I let my knees fall to one side, then back to the middle, then to the other side. Try it! It helps a lot.

There's another good yoga posture I include in my "yoga for housewives" series. While doing dishes, I just lift one leg out to the side and rest my heel on the draining board. Lean toward that leg and get a good stretch in the back of the leg in your opposite side. Then do the other leg.

Neck rolls and touching your toes are other basic yoga postures. Then take a few deep breathes and I guarantee you'll feel a little less stiff and more relaxed.

Mama's Tips

Hooray for the summer! Now that it has finally arrived, Mamma's right in the spirit, dragging out the old barbecue sauce recipe from last summer. She adds a tablespoon or two of lemon juice to her sauces and marinades. The acid in the juice "intensifies" the flavor by "lysing" (the chemical word for "loosening" or "cutting open") the little flavor packets in the oils and spices, and cuts down on the amount of salt required at the same time. Lemon juice also adds zing to homemade salad dressings, but Mamma suggests only a teaspoon in most cases.

While on the subject of sauces, Mamma adds left-over wine to salad dressing if it's not too dry (She says "sour", having no pretensions), and also uses it to baste fowl and meat. The alcohol cooks off, of course, and the relatively high sodium content in the wine allows her to avoid the table salt again. The only problem is obtaining left-over wine, since Uncle Tommy insists upon finishing it off, which raises Mamma's blood pressure anyway.

Report from Steelblue Chameleon Lodge

Did you know there is such a thing as a professional rock skipping rock? Well, neither did our judges at the 2nd annual Rock Skipping Tournament 4th of July at the Steelblue Chameleon. Grand Pooh Pah Judge Doug Kinney eliminated the perfectly symmetrical, perfectly weighted, perfectly convex (concave?) perfectly unacceptable stones. Ken, the owner of the rocks, humbly finished second in the finals, grumbling, of course that he would've won if he had used his rocks. The champion Adult, Mel Luckie from Lakeside, agreed later that part of the challenge is finding your stones along rivers, lakes and beaches.

We are, however, considering having Sun Products, manufacturers of the ultimate skipping stone, sponsor next years event. There would be a separate "professional" division for those of you who want to qualify yourselves as professional. It could be the perfect second career for retired baseball players. I wonder if Carlton Fisk would sign a one year contract for food? I see big things for next year.....sponsors, celebrities, ESPN coverage, rock skipping shoes and gloves.... Oh, skip it!

I knew I liked the idea of a pie bake off when Maureen suggested it back in May. What a great excuse to eat pie. Judging the event on Saturday, July 3 were Sue Golec, owner of the Truculent Oyster (yes, she and Tim were actually seen relaxing), Mel Luckie from Lakeside and champion rock skipper, and Tom Whitehead, a champion pie eater. Third place pie winner is Donna Lee from Coos Bay for her golden, open face peach pie. Martha Britell's silky smooth lemon cream pie won second place. Blue ribbon pie for the first annual Pie Bake Off at the Steelblue is Ann Foss's sweettart rhubarb custard pie. Formerly good friends, Martha and Ann were seen scratching and tearing at each other while husbands Jim and Bob desperately tried to break them up. Last we heard Ann was being sent to Alaska to chill out. It was agreed that next year we will have separate categories for cream, custard fruit pies and a "Best of Show". Meanwhile, I had to make these 3 pies go around to about 50 drooling mouths and smacking lips.

Once again, I am humbly and eternally thankful to all of you who gave us your time and your support. The eternally young Mother Mary and Miss Hannah continue to remind me how old they are, but I don't seem to listen. I just tell them to chop, slice and dice. Chef Rob still has not said no to anything I have asked him to do here at the lodge. The "back porch crew" of the Feldhaus family, Kevin Shea, Sherri Gee and Jim and Velma Johnson were an enthusiastic support team. Kathleen, Maureen and Joyce are my "dream team" and I thank you. I am blessed and I notice. I'll see you on the river!

Thank you Ron Cohen for your help in getting this issue of Port Orford Today! out on time.

Letter to the Editor:

For those of you who have not had the opportunity to read the 2CJ School Board GOALS for the 1992-93 school year, they are as follows, as reported in the pamphlet handed out at the school board meetings.

School Board GOALS 1992-93

1. To obtain Government Watershed Enhancement Board Grant.
2. To actively become involved in the legislative process through board member involvement.
3. To open the "white building".

Since education was not a priority with the 2CJ school Board, in fact it was not even mentioned, I called the State to ask for REAL school board goals! The following are an example of a few good educational goals.

State Education Goals

1. Every school will assure that students achieve high performance in challenging subject matter and that success is verified by what students know and can do.
2. Every school will involve parents, employers, the work force and agencies serving children and families - working in partnership - to set goals and achieve the results society expects of education.
3. Every school will have clear goals and be accountable to those it serves.
4. Every school will provide student-centered schools that recognizes both the different needs of individuals and the importance of individuals as an integral part of the whole community.
5. Every school will equip today's students with the knowledge, skills and attitudes to live in the increasing diverse, interdependent world of tomorrow.

Would it be refreshing if a school board decided to adopt and implement THESE goals? I bet we would see some real growth in all areas!

Recall

On Friday, June 25th, a petition for the recall of five (5) Port Orford/Langlois School District 2CJ board members was filed. In a remarkably short time, many more signatures than required were obtained from irate voters living in the school district. The signatures were turned in to Renee Kolen, County Clerk, on Thursday, July 8th. An election should be held soon to effect the recall.

The issues that most of the people were concerned about were renewing of Superintendent Wold's 4 year contract a year before his present contract would expire, the extremely low morale of both classified and non-classified personnel, the expensive reopening of a condemned school building (4 separate campuses for 530 students) and the lack of challenge for the Port Orford/Langlois students.

The above article was submitted by the Committee for Recall of 2CJ School Board.

The Committee for Recall turned in petitions with 300 signatures on them. These signatures were collected in a two week period. The necessary 205 valid signatures were verified by the County Clerk's office on Friday, July 9. The five school board members now facing a recall election are Larry Blount, Marilyn Cuthbert, Marilyn Haga, Mike Knapp and Don Smith. They had five days from Friday, July 9, to either resign from their position or notify the County Clerk they would face the recall election. They are entitled to a 200 word or less rebuttal to the charges brought against them by the recall committee. Such a statement was submitted for all five members so the matter will go to a vote. County clerk Renee Kolen said vote-by-mail ballots should be delivered by Saturday, July 31. Ballots must be mailed or returned to the Elections Division by 8:00pm Tuesday, August 17. The results of the election will be available later that evening.

If some members, but not all, are recalled leaving a quorum of 4 members, these remaining members would pick the new school board members. If either 4 or 5 of the school board members are recalled, leaving less than a quorum, the seven member elected board of the Curry Education Service Department will choose replacements. Any members of the school board appointed to replace recalled members would serve a term of office through June 30, 1994 when they would be replaced by permanent members chosen in the Spring '94 election.

The cost of the school board recall election is paid for by the 2CJ School District and estimated at about $3,000.

other tree which proved less intimidating and was able to return to Earth. Here I thought I was going to have to call the fire department.

This morning I go out to feed the chickens and admire the recently planted starts. Unfortunately I'd violated rule Number 1 of gardening in Port Orford. Fence the garden in, preferably 8' high with wire buried in the ground thereby keeping out deer (well, some deer), dogs and rabbits. However bear and raccoons aren't impressed by this kind of fencing. There being no fence around this garden one of the starts had already been dug up and part of the raised bed garden had been pawed at. Can't blame Myrtle because I didn't see her in the act but she does loves to be helpful.

If you have anything to add about the condition of your fruit trees or garden pass it on to us and we'll share it.

Welcome to Port Orford, Ron Cohen. It took him thirty six hours from the time he left his apartment to go to the train station, ride the train to Eugene, and get driven to Port Orford. I'm sure it'll be worth it.

"Summer Angels, Some Are Not"

Back by popular demand, the favorite musical comedy group "Summer Angels, Some Are Not" will be in Coquille to delight adult audiences on Friday, July 30, at the Coquille Valley Elks Club. The performance begins at 8:00pm with a no host bar scheduled to open at 7:00pm.

This year's show is entitled "Boomers With A View" and has been playing to rave reviews in Portland since May. Dan DePrez, theater critic for Willamette Week, says the show "combines satire, music, the occasional bad pun and rib-tickling insights into a show that is witty and downright silly....catch this show!"

This will mark the fifth appearance by this group in Coquille. They also perform during the holiday season as the "Fallen Angel Choir" to sold-out crowds at the Sawdust Theater.

Tickets to the event are available at Off the Record in Coos Bay, Shindler's Drug in Bandon, Coquille Stationery, or at the door if any remain. Admission is $8.50. For more information, call Rochelle Wiese at City Promotions, 396-5131.
