Labor Day Weekend

by Evan Kramer

What does Labor Day weekend mean to you? Well since you're not here to answer that question I'll fill in some of the blanks. For students in the 2CJ school district it means their last weekend before school which starts the day after Labor Day. Students in Gold Beach have already returned to school as their first day was August 30. Riley Creek saw 478 students enroll this year while Gold Beach High School checks in with 257 students.

Some workers get an additional day off as banks and credit unions are closed; federal, state and local government offices are closed as well as the U.S. Postal Service. However, the vast majority of people who own and operate their small businesses will turn their lights on and open for business. It means the end of the season for many amusement parks in the eastern part of our country. Hard to believe but the "season" for many of them is Memorial Day through Labor Day.

Labor Day means there's only 108 days left until Christmas! I had to throw that in even though there are two weeks of summer left on the calendar.

Here along the southern Oregon coast Labor Day means it's time to have a garage sale. This week's edition of this paper has listings for the most garage sales of any weekend this summer. Time to "do the circuit" as I refer to the practice of hitting all the different sales in one morning.

Labor day was first started in 1882 by the Knights of Labor with a parade through the streets of New York City. It is now a legal holiday and falls on the first Monday in September. Working people in Europe are honored on the first day in May.

Labor day means the meager efforts I put into my garden are now paying off. Despite digging dogs, curious cats and ravenous banana slugs the labor of summer is paying off now with a bountiful harvest of zucchini, yellow squash, tomatoes, and maybe pumpkins and Johnson squash. The apple tree which produced approximately no fruit this year is now flowering? as we start the month of September. Incidentally, the best slug bait I've used this summer is beer. The cheaper brands in 40 ounce bottles do the trick.

Labor Day means the start of getting serious in a presidential election year. This isn't one of those, but Oregonians will have plenty to talk about between now and November 9. On that day they will make their way to polls and decide whether to approve or disapprove a sales tax initiative - for the ninth time. So it won't be all quiet on the western front this fall.

Labor Day also signifies the start of a new television season. The widely heralded movement of David Letterman from NBC to CBS took place on Monday of this week but that just signals the beginning of television's yearly offering of new and "improved" shows.

Labor Day means the 1993-94 ESA Sorority Port Orford-Langlois community birthday calendar is out. The 28th edi-

Until the early 1960's, Labor Day meant it was time for fashionable ladies to put away their white heels, white purse and gloves, and flowered hats and don darker colors for Fall. You might recall this custom if you are over 40 and lived just about anywhere except California, which was bohemian even back then. In all fairness, though, San Franciscans kept to this tradition until the hippy revolution.

Arts Council Meets and Eats

The Port Orford Arts Council invites everyone to come to their next meeting, Friday, September 3, at the Truculent Oyster in Port Orford.

Those wishing to enjoy the excellent cuisine available at the Truculent should arrive at 6:00pm. The meeting will start at 7:30.

On the agenda are discussions of the art auction coming up on September 25th, the continuing Native American lecture series, next year's festival, among other interesting subjects.

An open floor period will be available for comments and suggestions. Everyone is welcome to attend and to speak.

Don't complain there's nothing to do in town. Come enjoy a fun group of people who make good things happen right here at home, and have fun doing it.

Bed Tax Committee

The bed tax committee met on Thursday evening, August 26, and came up with their recommendations for the Port Orford City Council.

The beautification committee request for a total of $3300 for landscaping and other projects at Battle Rock Park was okayed.

It was recommended to give the Port Orford Arts Council $3605 for brochures, banners and advertising.

The Port Orford Chamber of Commerce was granted $5500 for capital improvements - expand visitor center, $3,000 for brochures and $5,000 for advertising.

The Jubilee committee request for advertising money in the amount of $600 was approved.

It was recommended to give the City of Port Orford parks department $6500 for new playground equipment at Buffington Park.

The Port of Port Orford request for funds to pave the boneyard was given in the amount of $4495.

All of the grant requests except for the beautification committee are for less than the six groups originally requested.

These are recommendations which will be taken up at the September meeting of the Port Orford city council.

Winter Garden by Sandy Eisman

Just because fall is coming, it doesn't mean the end of garden delights. Since we live in a fairly moderate climate we can still enjoy beets, spinach, lettuce, chard, brussel sprouts, cabbage, carrots, radishes, kale, etc. throughout the winter.

You may say that your garden is already full, but you can probably take out some old bean and squash plants that have finished production to start the root crops and lettuce. They do better when seeds are sown directly in the soil. The other seeds can be started in small pots or flats so they are ready to replace the summer veggies which grow into fall.

The secret of a winter garden is that crops are meant to be harvested not planted in winter. Start your seeds from now until the end of September. Plants don't grow much in winter so they must be started when there are still some sunny days to give a good start.

Watch how parts of your garden are shaded differently in winter as the sun moves toward the south. Put your plants where they'll get as much sun as possible. A good spot is on the south side of a building or wall which will reflect warmth. Plant taller plants like broccoli and chard to the north of shorter plants such as lettuce and carrots.

Plant a row of each variety now and another row in a couple of weeks to extend harvest.

Prepare the soil just like you do in spring, with compost mixed into soil and a balanced fertilizer. Do not use too much nitrogen as this will cause too much fast tender growth that makes plants susceptible to frost damage.

Choose plant varieties labeled "hardy". They can handle more rain and cold than regular varieties.

So get out your packages of seeds and get your winter garden started!

tion of this calendar runs from September, 1993 to August, 1994. It's a good way to find out when your friend's birthdays and anniversaries are. Once again the sorority did a nice job on their calendar.

Labor Day means the Langlois Community Fair isn't far off now. It takes place next Saturday, September 11 in downtown Langlois. The fair has grown in popularity every year and one of the reasons is the renowned free barbecue lunch. But there's more reasons than that to show up. Like last year there will be dozens of vendors setting up booths with

Kick Off!

And now from South Bend, Indiana it's Notre Dame Football. Wrong station. Actually from Bandon, Oregon it's time for Bandon Tiger Football!

This Sunday, September 5, the supporters of the Bandon Tigers football team are sponsoring a benefit for the football program. They've got a 180 lb. porker that'll be dressed and barbecued by Sunday afternoon. There will also be all kinds of side dishes and beverages available.

This shindig takes place at the 2 Mile Cafe in Bandon and starts at 2:00pm. Tickets are $25. All proceeds go to support the Bandon Tigers football program.
