Taking Care Of Business 93

Taking Care Of Business 93 by Evan Kramer

I'm still trying to understand the Clinton Forest Plan, North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA), and the Clinton Health Plan. I haven't seen the actual text of these issues but I've read a lot about them and listened to President Clinton's speech about the health plan last week. I don't know what the exact ramifications of the Clinton health plan will be for small businesses along the Oregon coast. The effects of the sales tax on business (if the voters approve it on November 9th) haven't been adequately explained.

The Port Orford Chamber of Commerce is attempting to help clear the air on some of these issues. They are inviting Senator Bill Bradbury to speak before the Chamber and the community. The tentative date they are shooting for is October 25 and the location would be the Community Building. The main subjects Bradbury would be asked to talk about are the sales tax ballot initiative and the Oregon Health Plan/Clinton Health Plan. The public will be welcome at this meetings. Get your questions ready.

Things are easier to understand around Port Orford. What's happening is, new businesses are starting, ownership has changed at some establishments while other businesses are changing location.

Paul and Pat Lee's Silver Door restaurant was sold several months back and the new owners of the building are getting close to reopening it as the newly named "The Crazy Norwegians." It is owned by Allen Masten and James "Jethro" Arnold. I got a good look at the inside of the building this morning. Besides a new addition to the front of the restaurant, they've completely redone the interior, even changing the location of the kitchen. They're going to specialize in hamburgers and fries, fish and chips and daily specials. That was Maureen Peer Oliver up on the forklift, painting the sign on their building while celebrating her first complete year in Port Orford.

A short block away from the Crazy Norwegians Russell and Alicia Ucolano from the Bay Area have bought the building formerly home to the Dancing Frog antique store. They plan to have a grand opening for their jewelry and antique store, Ace Of Gems, in a couple of weeks. Russell tells me that he has N and HO gauge trains and plans to set up a large train layout on the third story of his building. Three cheers!

Down at the north end of town, the Western Auto Store has new owners. They are Jim and Aletha Fortner from Kent, Washington. They told me they've had a lot of help and encouragement from people around town. They're also interested in hearing what people want stocked in their store whether it be auto parts, fishing equipment or hunting supplies.

The Wooden Nickel has new owners from Powers. They are Harvey and Dylis Johnston.

Port Orford's best and only insurance agent, Teresa Engdahl and her mother, Mary O. Loan, have bought the house located at 526 W. 9th St. directly in back of Richard AuFranc's building. They are both leaving their current locations and moving their businesses into the converted house.

Still More Mamma's Tips!

"Grape Tip" From Mamma: Wash loose seedless grapes. Pop into a ziplock freezer bag. Freeze. Take them out during winter and use as "ice cubes" for beverages and punch, or defrost before the kids come home for an after-school snack.

To remove the glue from those pesky price tags that sometimes refuse to come off new purchases, Mamma uses a cotton swab and nail polish remover. Be careful with plastics, though, because the acetone in the remover can dissolve them. Other times, low heat from a hair dryer can help soften the glue. Use care here too!

Arts Council Annual Meeting

The Port Orford Arts Council invites everyone to come to the annual meeting, Friday, October 1 at the Grantland residence, upstairs from the Grantland Mayfield Gallery in Port Orford.

The meeting will start at 7:00. It will be a "dessert meeting," so please bring one of your favorite concoctions. Park behind the gallery and come up the back stairs.

On the agenda are a recap of the art auction, the Native American lecture series, next year's arts festival, and the election of officers.

If you don't want to be elected to an officership, perhaps you should be there to be sure you are not nominated! As always, an open floor period will be available for comments and suggestions. Everyone is welcome to attend and to speak.

Don't complain there's nothing to do in town. Come enjoy a fun group of people, who make good things happen right here at home, and have fun doing it. Dessert at the Grantlands'. Friday, October 1, at 7:00pm.

Mamma's Tips

Mamma really cares about her friends, so they sometimes tell her about little personal problems. That's how she became aware that itching ears are a common problem for Oregon Coast residents.

It's probably a result of the high humidity and relatively warm weather. Mamma's itching ears were easily solved by very carefully putting a drop of a solution of equal parts vinegar and rubbing alcohol in her ear after her daily bath or shower, and then drying the ear thoroughly.

You may want to consult your doctor before trying this and should always do so for persistent or severe problems.

Feudal (Futile) Meeting

Representatives from the Oregon Department of Transportation met with Port Orford city officials on Monday afternoon, September 27. ODOT employees Stan Hobbs, Dale Huntington and Mark Usseiman sat down at the table with city manager Dean Madison, Mayor Delaine Kennedy and councilmen George Kennedy and Carl Eskelson. The city's two primary concerns were the BP gas station and a traffic light. As most people know the BP station was recently torn down with the owners planning on rebuilding. They bought the lot next to the station and applied for the right to add a second ingress/egress on Highway 101 to their property. ODOT turned that request down. Nothing said at Monday's meeting indicated any willingness to change that decision. ODOT's people said it was safer to use the side streets for entering the gas station. They said a second driveway would exceed the agencies new standards regarding the Highway 101 master plan. They also claimed there was a "method to their madness". City officials were told how each driveway and intersecting street had 9 potential points of conflict from different driving situations. Not the same thing as George Bush's points of light.

Mayor Kennedy and the other officials were told there had been a traffic count done at Highway 101 and 12th Street in regards to the requested installation of a traffic light. However, they were also informed that the volume on the side street was very important and reminded them that 12th and 101 was a T intersection - no cross traffic.

The possibility of a left turn lane at Sixes River Road and 101 was discussed as well as the Arizona slide.

When Mamma makes stuffed toys for her grandchildren, she uses dryer lint she has saved up as stuffing. It's clean, washable, and free. She does have to watch out for the blue lint from jeans because the dye can fade lighter colors. Mamma's current project is a stuffed brussels sprout. Most people make bunnies and dolls. Mamma makes stuffed vegetables so kids will learn to love them. Maybe it'll work...

Find Waldo at the Langlois Library

Right away, as you enter the Langlois Library, your eyes are drawn to the captivating oil painting by September's Artist, Tere Tronson. Tronson's work, "Still Life: Where's Waldo" has to do with searching and the passage of time and youthful seeking.

Tronson, daughter of painter Orval Dillingham, has an eclectic artistic background - from a stint in the Los Angeles theater scene to print production in advertising. She started her own mail order business featuring her paper doll art which has appeared in several national publications including "Doll Reader" and "Doll Castle News." Nowadays, Tronson prefers painting in oils. One reason is, "the slow drying time allows me to accommodate the many interruptions necessary in my active family life with daughters Tyler and Signe and painter/architect husband, Jim." The Tronson family has become actively involved in their new community of Langlois

The Langlois Library hours are Tuesday through Friday from 1:00 to 7:00pm and Saturdays from 10:00am to 2:00pm so you have time to stop and find Waldo.

Great Oregon Beach Cleanup

It's time for the 10th annual Great Oregon Beach Clean Up. It takes place on Saturday, October 9, from 10:00am to 1:00pm. The Clean Up is sponsored by Stop Oregon Litter & Vandalism, Oregon Sanitary Service Institute and the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife.

According to the sponsors of this effort over the last nine years a total of 22,395 volunteers have collected 334,600 pounds of trash off the beaches of the Oregon coast.

The Beach Clean Up is divided into 14 zones with three of them serving southern Coos County and all of Curry County. Zone 12 volunteers meet at the "Barn" in Bandon. The zone captain is Ruth Ball at 347-2779. Zone 13 meets at Battle Rock Park and is the zone captain is Rick Hazzard at 332-2675. Zone 14, covering the area from Ophir to the California border meets at the Port Of Gold Beach parking lot and at the Brookings Information Center. Todd Confer is the zone captain and his phone is 247-7605.

Volunteers are asked to gather at 10:00am at the meeting sites where the captains will assign them a beach to gather the detritus from.

Some of the most common forms of garbage found on these clean up days are six pack yokes, fishing line, netting, and strapping bands. They can all be hazardous to seabirds, fish and mammals.

However, some things that float up on the shore might be considered "finds". These include glass floats or even plastic fishing floats.

The high and low tides for Port Orford on October 9, 1993 will be as follows...

High: 7:32am 5.5' and 6:16pm 6.4'
Low: 12:38am 0.6' and 12:43pm 3.4'

Teresa's office won't remain vacant for even 24 hours because as she moves out Milton Finch and Sandy Cockrell will take over the space. Milton does custom jewelry in addition to jewelry repairs. I know there are a few newlyweds around town wearing rings Milton made especially for them. Sandy will run a consulting business handling medicare problems, etc.

Port Orford Realty which until recently headquartered in the AuFranc "blue building" has leased the former Golden Owl Deli. The change from restaurant to real estate office is pretty startling especially if you spent as much time as I used to at the Golden Owl. That's quite a nice sign they put up on the side of the building.

We hear from Richard AuFranc, aka The Troll, that he will be moving out of the basement and up to the street level of his building where he too can now gaze out the window at the passing parade.

More restaurant changes have come to our attention. CB's Bistro is moving though we don't have their new location for you yet. Their last day at the Sixes Hotel will have been on September 29. The owners of the Sixes Hotel, Eric Overbeck and Marilyn Dewitt, will start running the restaurant themselves on October 6.

The BP station may be gone for now but the propane they sold is now available at the Camp Blanco RV Park. Propane is also available at Port Orford Trailer Village.

Good luck to all these people in their business ventures. It's exciting watching so many people putting their talents and money into businesses. The more the merrier.

Mamma's Tips

Mamma keeps lots of photos of her many friends and their escapades. However, she does not have the money to spend on fancy albums or the patience to put each photo away one-at-a-time.

Instead, she pops the photos into index card boxes and labels the index tabs for easy retrieval.

Some of her more curious tab titles are: "Travels on the Far Side", "Grandson's Auto Debacle", and "Mamma Meets Godzilla, and Wins". Imagine your own scenarios, cause Mamma's not talkin.
