Happy Thanksgiving!

Happy Thanksgiving by Evan Kramer

We got back from the Comdex computer convention and a quick trip to Los Angeles just in time for Thanksgiving in the snow. I had Christmas more on my mind as we drove home on Monday northbound on Interstate 5. Driving through the Mt. Shasta area we ran into our first snow and stopped in Yreka for a while watching the snow fall. By the time we left the restaurant the sun was out. We hit snow again in Oregon going through the Siskiyou Pass and had quite a bit fall on us up through the Camas Valley.

We may have been headed north but the Christmas trees were going in the other direction. We saw several neatly stacked and bundled truckloads of Oregon trees headed south to Christmas tree lots destination unknown but I know they'll need a few million in southern California. I didn't see any truckloads of turkeys headed in any direction so I assume they've already been shipped and in most cases are already in people's refrigerators if not their ovens. That's one barnyard animal I've never tried to raise. They're pretty interesting to watch. They have a face only a mother could love and when annoyed the toms spread their feathers in an impressive display.

Meanwhile this Wednesday, the day before Thanksgiving, is the most highly traveled day of the year. American Airlines flight attendants and management have agreed to go to binding arbitration ending the strike at the airline. This will enable even many more thousands of people to fly back home and be with their families and friends for this holiday. I noticed the Monday morning Greyhound bus that stops at Circle K had an unusually large amount of people on it.

Other odds and ends in Las Vegas while attending the computer convention: It seemed like every other person walking around the convention halls or for that matter hurriedly walking around town or the hotels had a cellular phone pressed to their ear. There was even a booth at the Sands convention center renting cellular phones. There were too many people making calls one day and the Las Vegas phone system became overloaded. It was definitely an electronic world at Comdex.

Going up right next door to the Vegas World hotel and casino is the Stratosphere Tower. So far only the three legged base of the planned 1,072 feet high building is done. It already sticks out from wherever you are in town and it's not even one third done. The MGM Grand Hotel opens in December. They bill themselves as the largest hotel, casino, and resort in the world with 5,005 rooms, a 15,000 seat arena and four casinos. They're hiring employees right now and have already signed on 2,000 of the 7,500 they need to operate this place. Management of the hotel and the Culinary Worker's Union are battling right now to see whether the hotel will be a unionized one or not. Meanwhile over at the Dunes Hotel only rubble remains of the main tower and sign. It was dynamited in front of a live audience of a couple hundred thousand people and filmed so everyone who wasn't there could see the tower collapse on itself. The Dunes is being demolished to make way for an even grander and more elaborate hotel and casino.

Letter To The Editor,

Recently it has been reported on the news and read in the newspapers that a teacher in our school district is bringing legal action against the district by way of a law suit. As Chairperson of the 2CJ School Board, it is my responsibility to inform the public that the district will contest the allegations made and set the record straight. Ray Davis was afforded his due process rights and the district board cares about its staff, their rights, but we do not always agree with the actions of the union. While the teacher contends he was not given factual reasons for cancelling his coaching contract, the truth is he was given those in writing and a public record was made of those reasons.

The teacher and his union initiated a proposal to buy out both his teaching and coaching contract. The proposal was rejected by the board as it had no immediate concern for his teaching performance. The board's concern was related to his coaching, and the best for the Pacific High School students in the basketball program.

The district will vigorously contest the allegations as no agreement was made to buy out his contract. The suit has been turned over to the school's insurance company to handle this legal action.

Schools Can't Do It Alone

by Richard Wold, School Superintendent

"No longer can we allow our schools to respond to the needs of yesterday. Our state, our nation and the global economy are changing. Schools must move ahead to keep pace with the future." Norm Paulus, State Superintendent of Public Instruction

Oregon public schools face a great challenge. We welcome active participation by all who share our commitment to education. Key partners are the community colleagues and four year colleges and universities.

We are working with human resource agencies to bring their service closer to schools. We need more parents and community members to volunteer in our schools.

We are establishing partnerships with businesses. The work place is becoming an extension of the classroom. Strong schools, essential to a healthy economy benefits all Oregonians.

We expect all students to be proficient in math, science, language, social studies and the arts. Students also will be as healthy and fit as they can be. The curriculum is becoming more rigorous; individual achievement will be assessed regularly. Our graduates will be well prepared for the challenges of responsible citizenship, life-long learning and the increasing complexities of adult life. All students need to acquire the technical skills that will allow them to compete for jobs in our changing global economy. In this age of technology, those skills may range from robotics to rocketry; from conservation to communication. Students must be able to connect learning to know what learning to do.

Our goals are to produce the best educated citizens in the nation by the year 2000 and a work force equal to any in the world by the 2010.

You are encouraged to get involved with your schools. Call them today and offer your help.

All Seasons Fairgrounds

Come rain or shine, there is almost always something to see and do at the Curry County Fairgrounds in every season.

Docia Sweet Hall is starting to look a lot like Christmas, with the Calico Country Bazaar, The Gold Beach Community Bazaar - Have A Merry Bear-y Christmas, the Festival of Lights, and Santa Claus will be at the fairgrounds from 4 to 6 pm on December 4th.

The 4-H Dorms were recently occupied by a group from Butte Falls High School. The group were representatives of the Natural Helpers program, a nation wide student peer group. While training, the young group was able to take in the easy beach access on the West side of the fairgrounds, with picnic tables and nice restrooms.

With our beautiful fall weather, the fairgrounds beach was the perfect spot for the group to build a fire, and roast hot dogs.

The indoor arena was the site of a very successful arenacross recently. The next scheduled arenacross is on December 11th and 12th. again in the indoor arena. Currently one half of the arena floor is prepared with a custom track, and the other half is reserved for equestrian use. Plans are in progress for scheduled motocross practices, and mountain bicycle riding. Remember the indoor arena is a great place to practice and get some exercise.

The livestock pavilion, which serves as indoor RV storage during the winter months is quickly filling up.

We're Back!

by Valerie Jean Kramer

Well, we're back and we're BAD! Our trip was a lot of strain, but very productive. We spent a full three days at the COMDEX computer convention - 170,000 attendees, 2.2 million square feet of exhibits by more than 3,000 exhibitors in more than 2,000 booths! We've signed up new products, new distributors, and have a much clearer picture of where the computer industry is going for the next year or so.

Last week, after only a single day at COMDEX, I said that CD-ROM and Microsoft Windows are the mainstream of today's computer marketplace. Now, after the whole trip, I'm more convinced than ever of the truth of those statements. It will take a while till DOS dies, probably several years, but the end appears pretty certain. Apple Computer has been making a lot of noise lately with new products, pricing, and policies but COMDEX remains almost exclusively an IBM Compatible show. Apple had a booth and there were some Apple related products but only a miniscule percentage. Sorry Apple fans, this just wasn't your show.

After COMDEX, we visited Los Angeles and I had a chance to attend their gigantic monthly computer swap meet. Although there are still vendors selling shareware on 3.5" floppies (and even some on obsolete 5.25" disks!), the crowds were at the booths buying CD-ROMS. You decide which is the better deal: a 1.44Mb floppy full of software for $3.00 ($2.08/Mb) or a 680Mb CD-ROM for $19.95 ($0.03/Mb)? Tough choice, NOT! With CD-ROM drives selling for under $250 installed, it's getting harder to ignore. Yes, the Downtown Fun Zone now has a small selection of software on CD-ROM and will get more as time, money, and your interest permit. Please ask about additional items not on display.

While you're getting your CD-ROM, why not add a sound card? We can fix you up with a SoundBlaster 2.0 & Adlib compatible card with built-in MIDI, 5 software packages, and speakers for as little as $89.95!

With your CD-ROM and sound card, your computer becomes what's known as a "Multimedia PC" and you'll be ready for both serious fun and even more serious education. Imagine the difference between a book encyclopedia with still pictures and text versus a CD-ROM encyclopedia with full video and sound of historic events - Martin Luther King or JFK making historic speeches, the fatal flight of the Challenger, the moon landing and many more. How about learning about internal combustion engines from a CD-ROM encyclopedia that actually shows the engine in action, illustrating the suck, squeeze, pop, and ptoic stages

Evan & Valerie Kramer of The Downtown Fun Zone would like to thank Ewald Stollger of Ophir Desktop Publishing (247-6720) for his assistance in putting out last week's paper. While we were out of town, Ewald was able to typeset all the new and changed ads and put the paper together into one of our best ever. Thank you Ewald!

Ewald says we should also give Nancy, Sandy, and Flo credit for their long hours and for putting up with him. I don't suppose putting up with him was such a chore, but he's right that they deserve some credit too. Thanks folks, you done real good!

We're really proud of our staff and the great job they did while we were out.

Total Lunar Eclipse Sunday

This Sunday's eclipse of the moon should be, weather permitting, just about perfect for West Coast viewers. It begins about 7:27pm, well after sunset, and when the moon will be a comfortable 35° high in the sky.

About 8pm, the naked eye will detect a subtle darkening of the lower left edge of the moon. Dramatic darkening of the lower left edge will begin at about 8:45pm. The moon will continue to disappear for the next hour and a quarter until at 10:02pm it has completely vanished (or become very faint) into the shadows. At 10:50pm, it will begin to reverse the process and appear from the other side of the shadow. The moon will brighten visibly until 12:12am Monday morning when it leaves the umbra (the Earth's inner shadow) and the eclipse is completed at 1:25am when the moon completely exits the penumbra (the Earth's outer shadow.)

During an eclipse, sunlight is refracted around the edge of the earth and onto the moon. Red light passes through our atmosphere best (it is refracted least), which is why sunrises and sunsets are red. It is this refracted light that gives an eclipsed moon its reddish color.

The best time to look is from around 10:00 p.m., while the moon is disappearing, to about 10:30, at mid-eclipse. Use binoculars if you have them, or a small telescope.

of a four cycle engine. These aren't pie-in-the-sky. You can buy them today!

Our trip also took us to visit our main computer system supplier. He's given me some pretty exciting pricing on new systems. No reason why you shouldn't find a 486 local bus computer under your Christmas tree this year! I should have new price sheets out by the beginning of next week, but I can tell you now, they're better than ever!

Video Donation

The Port Orford Arts Council is pleased to announce the donation of a new video to the Port Orford Library's collection of fine videos.

Gifts From The Fire documents the peaceful, private world of a Benedictine monk, Brother Thomas Bezanson, a ceramic artist who creates some of the world's most exquisite porcelain pottery. This program interweaves the story of Brother Thomas with the technical aspects of the making of a single piece of art.

This gift is in honor of the art council's 16th year in the community. The video is a continuation of a series of gifts presented to the Library by the Port Orford Arts Council.

I finally gave in and bought a local area network for our office. We have three computers which are seeing more and more use. Of course, the file or program needed is always on the wrong computer. I suppose many of you have a similar problem in your business. Well, prices have come down and the software has been improved to the point where it makes more sense to network than to wait. We'll be installing Lantastic for Windows and DOS on our systems but there are several other good choices. If you've been thinking about a network, drop by or give me a call and I'll be happy to help you find the right solution for your systems.

Well, I've got several bags full of literature and magazines to read before the mailbox fills with more info and products that are being shipped to me. We'll have more computer news in the coming issues.

Fri. Nov. 26 - Don't miss Sun. night's total lunar eclipse, a beautiful conclusion to this Thanksgiving holiday weekend.

Sat. Nov. 27 - At dusk the moon, approaching Full, is low in the E with reddish first-magnitude Aldebaran rising 19° to its lower left. The Pleiades star cluster is 9° to the moon's left. Use one hand to block the moon's glare, or better yet, wait until tomorrow night's total lunar eclipse to view this beautiful grouping.

Sun. Nov. 28 - Watch the Full Moon rise in the ENE. Later tonight, the moon sweeps through the Earth's shadow, undergoing a total lunar eclipse! Begin watching at 8:40pm PST, as the moon begins to enter the umbra, or dark central core of Earth's shadow. By 10:02pm

I'm sure everyone has good memories of past Thanksgivings. It is a day that seems to encourage closeness in people. Relatives and friends who haven't seen each other for years get back together on this day and break bread. It's always one of the highlights of the year. Happy Thanksgiving.

Skywatchers Guide

PST the moon will be in total eclipse! Located in a beautiful star field between the Pleiades and Hyades star clusters, the moon at deepest eclipse at 10:26 pm PST may show a variety of colors — possibly dark brown at its northern edge, red-orange near its center, and bright bluish-white at its southern limb. Totality ends 24 minutes later, at 10:50pm Finally at 12:12am, the moon completely leaves the umbra. Enjoy this spectacular event now, as the next total lunar eclipse between these star clusters won't be until the year 2058!

Mon. Nov. 29 - The moon, now just past full, rises in the ENE about half an hour after sunset. As the sky darkens, look for Aldebaran, the fiery eye of Taurus, 7° to the upper right of the moon.

Tue. Nov. 30 - Tonight the waning gibbous moon rises in ENE as darkness falls, about 1½ hours after sunset from northern U.S. Note Aldebaran is now 20° to the moon's upper right. In another hour, watch for the rising of another reddish star, Betelgeuse, marking Orion's shoulder, 13° to the moon's lower right.
