Port Orford, Doug Evans Take First Place by Evan Kramer

The Port Orford Heritage Society's booth at the Curry County Fair took first place in the Community Exhibits category. The booth was sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce and the Port of Port Orford.

Three people deserve special mention for their efforts in putting the booth together. They are Martha Weaver Britell, Viola Cuatt and Hannalore Von Spaeth. The booth, located in the commercial building, featured many historical photos showing Port Orford through the years as well as a proposal for the Port Orford dock of the future. One wall contained several modern photos taken by Peggy Alessio of Port Orford. Some of the most interesting photos for visitors to the booth were two of logging in the "old days". The booth also featured live cranberry plants, eggs, wool, pottery, woven baskets, wood sculpture and more.

The moos turned to boos for Cindy Ryan in the second heat of the demolition derby held last Sunday at the Fair. Ryan, a crowd favorite, suffered from a balky car and sat out most of the race. However, she did come back strong in the demolition derby final event and won the crowd back, only to be taken out of action by a hit from another car. The winner of the derby was Doug Evans of Bandon. Evans beat back six challengers in the final event on the water-saturated mudimpaired oval track. He walked away with a $500 grand prize and a trophy. This Sunday in Crescent City some of the same demolition derby drivers will try it again at the Jefferson State Fair.

August Declared Yard Sale Month

President William Jefferson Clinton has declared the month of August National Yard and Garage Sale Month. The President took time off from his busy schedule promoting national health care plan along with attending to several crises around the world to sign the official proclamation. The President noted that August is the last full month of summer vacation for most students before they return to their school. He said he understood most consumers would be hard pressed financially with back to school sales and vacations. He said they would be looking for a few good deals and the bargains to be had at garage sales. He stated this would be an alternative to more borrowing at increasingly higher interest rates noting the prime is on an upward trend.

Clinton asked Congress for a joint resolution supporting his national yard and garage sale month and in an historic achievement they concurred unanimously with the first term President. It is not known whether the Clintons will hold a garage sale at the White House. Since few Democrats seeking election to Congress and the Senate this Fall have requested his personal help with their campaigns it is thought he might have the time for a sale.

This weekend in the Port Orford area there are at least one dozen garage and yard sales. On your mark, get set, GO!

Seen Along Highway 101

Monday morning, the first day of August I saw a 1950 jet black modified hot rod Studebaker parked across the street from Bartlett's. Other vehicles of interest were a caravan of red Citroens on Saturday. I saw them through the window heading south and attempted to follow them hoping they would stop at Battle Rock Park. They didn't. The movie What's Eating Gilbert Grape featured a couple of scenes with a caravan of Airstream trailers. What a fine sight that was for an admirer of those beautiful trailers. Also seen the last couple of weeks were several recumbent bicycles including one yellow fully enclosed model.

Two auto accidents happened in Port Orford since last week's paper came out. One was in front of Hogard's Garage where a car with a Washington license plate rear-ended another car. One of the passengers in the Washington car was injured and Port Orford ambulance responded to the call. This Tuesday there was another auto accident in front of the Crazy Norwegians. Drive defensively, safety and enjoy the rest of your vacation.

Reading Scientific Papers

Imaging a building with many rooms full of gleaming chrome, blinking lights and people in white coats doing mysterious things. As you might suppose, their explanations of their work can be difficult to understand. Here is a guide to help translate scientific mumbo-jumbo into laymans terms.

"It has long been known..."

I haven't bothered to find the original reference.

"Although no definitive results were reached..."

I couldn't get it to work

"Finally, some typical results..."

... the best results...

"Agreement with hypothesis is: excellent, good, satisfactory, uncertain"

Agreement with hypothesis is: reasonable, doubtful, bad, non-existent

Salmon Disaster Assistance

August 2, 1994 - The Clinton Administration has declared Oregon's coastal counties a disaster area due to the salmon crisis.

This declaration, under the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA), means that up to 26 weeks of unemployment assistance should be available immediately through the Oregon Employment Division to affected fishermen not normally covered by unemployment insurance.

More information should be available soon, including what the eligibility requirements may be.

This information was released by the Oregon Coastal Zone Management Association in Newport. Their phone number is 503-265-8918.

A woman sent the new town doctor an RSVP invitation to a dinner party. She recieved a totally illegible reply.

“Take it to the pharmacist,” her husband advised. “They can always read doctors’ handwriting.”

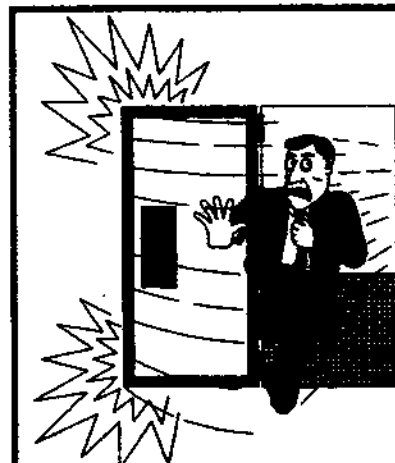

She did so. The pharmacist took it into his back room and returned with a bottle which he handed her and said, “That’ll be $17.50!”

For David
by Julie Eiferman

Quietly he came to earth and whispered as he grew, of Mother Nature's Kingdom and children that he knew. He chose to be the background within God's Master Plan. Observing life around him, a sensitive young man. He loved his sister Kimberly, his mother and his dad. Brock, Jennifer and Lindsay, all cousins he made glad. Deana his first cousin, especially loved him most. But now he's up in heaven with St. Peter as his host. He's really very happy, He's learning how to fly. Bouncing on white puffy clouds up in an endless sky. The angels made him captain of Noah and his Ark. Guiding all God's creatures through heaven when it's dark. We'll not forget this young man whose precious life was stolen. We'll honor and remember. David Brady Nolen

DONNA ROSELIUS

Letter To The Editor

Rick Cook related how some people used to trap monkeya. They would hollow out a gourd, put a hole in it, and place some bait inside. The hole would admit a monkey's empty hand, but would imprison his bait-laden fist.

Mr. Cook then likened this trap to the plight of the American worker, whose employer supposedly has enslaved him. I love Mr. Cook's story, but I apply it differently.

Our century has seen politicians promise workers doctoring, pensions and employment. Then, after Lenin, or Mussolini, or Hitler had taken control, the workers found themselves enslaved. Their leaders, whom they asked for Paradise, had given them Hell.

We must learn from their tragedies. Dictators and would-be dictators gain "freedom" for themselves by enslaving their peoples. Our Founding Fathers wanted to keep us free by enslaving our government. To do that, they wrote our Constitution.

We were to use it as an owner's manual. Only if its literal language permitted a bill, could we regard that bill as passable. Otherwise, we were to consider it only as a proposed Amendment.

Letting politicians circumvent or ignore our Constitution has "liberated" these leaders, but has cost us freedom. If this pattern continues, we will not need to visit a zoo to see monkeya. We will need only to look in the mirror. And that mirror will be in a cage.

Sincerely yours,

Gordon F. Corbett

I agree with you Gordon. This trading of "a little" liberty for a little security is a dangerous road! Editor
