River Bridges Collapse

By Evan Kramer

The Elk River rose to flood levels on Monday evening, Nov. 18. The debris swollen river was running at 15 to 17 feet at the hatchery Monday afternoon according to a phone message on the answering machine at the hatchery. The rampaging river took its toll on local residents and property.

Both the swinging bridge located just below the Elk River fish hatchery and the suspension bridge leading to Pete Lenihan's property at the five mile marker were destroyed. The swinging bridge below the hatchery leads to a community of six houses on the north side of Elk River. All that was left of the bridge was a cable across the brown and muddy river. A third bridge constructed of two railroad flat cars was also heavily damaged and out of service.

Tuesday morning Elk River road was passable but reduced to one lane in places as downed trees and rock debris blocked parts of the road. At the Fish Hatchery on Tuesday morning the water had receded from the previous evening but was still running so high the platform at the fish ladder was barely visible. Only about 8 inches of fence showed on the platform where normally you can stand and look out at the river. According to Ken Fliszar with the Hatchery Research Station the river crested at 19 feet on Monday night.

At 2:00pm Monday afternoon water was lapping at the foundation of the Sixes Grange Hall and flowing across the pastures at the Sixes River Hotel. The flood plain at Elk River and Highway 101 was under water. Later that night the Sixes River flowed across Highway 101. People at the Sixes Store sandbagged the front of their store keeping the waters out of the store. Sixes Store was closed on Tuesday morning.

Four Mile Creek flooded closing Highway 101 most of the day though some people in four wheel drive vehicles made it across. The 2CJ school district closed all four school buildings on Tuesday and Wednesday due to the flooding. Power wasn't restored at Pacific High School and the District Office until after 11pm Tuesday night. Many residents are still without electric power.

Internet provider Harborside set up a "Storm Comment Center" web page and many reports were posted. A flooded bogger reported 7.6 inches of rain had fallen on Morrison Road in Bandon between 9:00pm Sunday night and 5:00pm Monday night. Downtown Bandon was flooded as of 5:00pm Monday night. The Hunter Creek bridge was closed to all but log trucks as of Monday at 1:00pm.

Numerous power outages were reported north of Port Orford on Airport Road, Sixes River Road, Crystal Creek and Langlois.

The big Circle K sign took a direct hit from the wind and the whole thing ended up broken and scattered in their parking lot. It's times like this I miss the old Union 76 filling station orange ball that regularly imploded during high winds. I used that as a personal barometer of how high the winds had gotten.

Crew Saves Reservoir

The City of Port Orford Public Work's Department crew saved the day for city residents on Monday night. They worked through the night clearing storm drains of debris preventing flooding in the city.

Spry and alert, or stumbling and forgetful? What is it that allows some adults to complete a newspaper crossword puzzle faster as they get older, and yet causes others to forget the names of their own loved ones?

Haydeh Payami, Ph.D., associate professor of molecular and medical genetics and neurology at Oregon Health Sciences University, will delve into these mysteries of aging during a special ED-NET telecast. The show will be offered for public viewing at 7:30pm, Thursday, Nov. 21, in the Curry General Hospital dining room.

The show, "Genetics and Alzheimer's Disease," will focus on Dr. Payami's work identifying genes that seem to play a role in successful aging of the brain. She has found that these genes somehow are changed in patients with Alzheimer's and Parkinson's disease. The telecast also will discuss the genetic relationship between the two diseases.

Future Computers

by Valerie Jean Kramer

This week is the week of COMDEX, the annual convention of computer manufacturers, distributors, dealers, and gafflys which meets in Las Vegas to see the new technology, find new sources, make deals for the next year, and generally to schmooze with other like-minded folks.

Andy Grove, President and Chief Executive Officer of Intel Corp., gave the opening keynote speech this year. Intel is given credit for producing the first microprocessor, it's 4004 integrated circuit chip, in 1971. That makes this the 25th anniversary of microcomputers.

The current top-of-the-line microprocessors have 5.5 million transistors, run at 200Mhz and perform 400 MIPS (Millions of Instructions Per Second). Looking ahead 15 years, Grove predicted that, given what we know today about the laws of physics, microprocessors of the year 2011 may run at 10Ghz (50 times faster) and perform 100,000 MIPS (250 times more work) So far, Intel has a history of meeting or exceeding their predictions!

Technologies that are still fairly new but which, in my opinion, will become more popular in 1997 include the following:

Infrared optical links will replace wires between the computer and keyboards, mice, printers, and possibly other devices. The optical links work like a typical TV remote control. Early efforts required careful aiming to be sure signals weren't lost but newer designs have increased the data speed and lowered the cost to the point where the convenience of fewer wires may be within our grasp.

Writable CD-ROM drives. You can buy them now for under $700 but they will probably drop over the next couple of years to about $300 (and up). The software is still a bit cumbersome but is improving and too many normal CD drives can only read the first "session" off a CD. (If you record different data at different times on a blank CD, each recording session is a "session".) Still, each CD holds up to 680Mb and blank disks cost only $10-15 which makes them very useful for backups and infrequently used programs or files.

Zip and Jaz drives. Iomega introduced these removable disk drives which can hold up to 100Mb and 1Gb respectively.

Sumptuous Spread

"Sumptuous Spread" (of stories and snacks) is the title of a pre-school story time to be held Friday, November 22 at the American Legion Hall from 10:30 to 11:30 am. Seasonal stories and activities will be presented by Shirley Nelson, Children's Librarian with the Port Orford Public Library.

The event is planned for children 3 to 5 years old. Parents may stay if they wish. If you would like your child to attend but do not have transportation, call Port Orford Library at 332-5622 and a ride will be provided, to and from the Legion Hall. This is a cooperative effort between the library and the local American Legion post, funded by a Ready-to-Read grant from Oregon State Library.

Holiday Craft Day

Join in the fun at the Langlois Public Library on Friday, Nov. 22, from 10-4. Some of the items available at the craft day are wreaths, weavings, stained glass, candles, afghans, ornaments, decorative wood items, holiday confections, jewelry and books. This is one of the library Fourth Friday monthly programs and is being held for the community to enjoy.

Wetland Inventory

A public workshop will be held to review the Wetland Inventory Draft Report and Map at the Port Orford City Council Chambers on Monday, November 25, at 7:00pm.

The purpose of the public workshop is to present the draft map and report, to explain how it was developed and how it will be used, and to improve the information it contains by gathering additional local knowledge about particular wetlands. Your input is important to make the wetland inventory as accurate as possible.

After the public meeting, the final map with data corrections will be made, and the inventory will be approved by the Division of State Lands. The relative importance and significance of each wetland can then be determined. Planners can better analyze any potential conflicting land uses. Local government can then consider policies or ordinances to protect wetland sites, or to allow development in them.

Dana Field from the Oregon Division of State Lands will be presenting the report and map at the meeting.

Roaring Sea Open House

Everyone is invited to enjoy the featured artists and musicians at the Last-Sunday-of-the-Month Open House at Roaring Sea Arts, 41678 Highway 101 South, Port Orford from 2:00 to 5:00, November 24. There will be no open house in December.

Featured this month will be watercolors by Jerry Hillman of Langlois, who recently returned from a study-tour in Italy, hand-made paper creations by Coos Bay artist Julie Crowl, and the unique baskets of Bob and Ellen Warring, whose basket studio is right here in Port Orford.

Informal music performances will be presented as usual by the Kammeroque Ensemble, plus a song segment (including our only chance at a Christmas sing-along) with Mary Lantz, accompanied by Stephanie Hazle, at 2:15, 3:15 and 4:15.

Come share the entertainment, refreshments, and snacks - which are as usual, pot-luck. It's always fun, and always more fun with more people. If you have questions, call Donna at 332-4444.

Festival of Lights

The Gold Beach Chamber of Commerce is once again proud to sponsor the Annual Festival of Lights decoration contest. Everyone is encouraged to help brighten our community with a celebration of festive lighting. A panel of judges will be surveying the area for a business/merchant and resident whose display stands out as an exceptional contribution to local holiday cheer.

Prizes are awarded to 1st and 2nd places in three categories; best commercial interior, best commercial exterior and best residential exterior. Judging is based on workmanship, support of the city's theme "101 Trees by the Sea", originality and overall appearance.

Entries can be picked up at the Gold Beach Chamber of Commerce, Chetco Federal Credit Union, Wells Fargo Bank or Western Bank. Entries must be received at the Chamber office no later than Monday, Dec. 9 at 10:00am. Judging takes place Monday evening with awards announced at the Chamber of Commerce General Membership Luncheon on Dec. 10, noon, at Rigorsnort's Restaurant.

If you have any questions, please call Shannon Clarno or Patty Brickley at 247-7526. In collaboration with the Curry Arts' 101 Trees project, this promises to be one of the most effective and delightful lighting celebrations seen in Gold Beach for many years. Happy Holidays!

Watershed Conference Report

The 1996 biennial Governor's Watershed Enhancement Board (GWEB) Conference, held in Seaside last Thursday and Friday, Nov. 13-14, was well attended by Curry representatives, and well worth it, according to David Wilken, Port Orford Watershed Council chairman. In his keynote speech Friday, Governor Kitzhaber congratulated the attendees on their efforts in salmon and steelhead habitat restoration. He said the 6-month extension recently granted by the federal government in listing Coho salmon under the Endangered Species Act was largely to their credit. If Oregon's salmon habitat restoration initiative, which is built on local work in individual watersheds, is accepted by National Marine Fisheries as an acceptable alternative to the proposed listing, it will be the first time America tries to save a specie from below, rather than through the usual heavy-handed regulation and enforcement from above.

Lucie LaBonte, of Brookings, chair of the South Coast Watershed Council (SCWC), and Wilken were both impressed that their registrations increased the attendance to over six hundred participants, including people from all parts of the state with a wide variety of backgrounds and interests. In fact, Dan Leighton, Blanco Middle School science teacher, was on the agenda, speaking on watershed education. So was Ophir's John Wilson, SCWC coordinator, who made a presentation on creating and sustaining watershed councils, as did Derrick Godwin of the OSU Extension Service. State Board of Forestry and GWEB member Wayne Krieger, and his wife, Colleen, of Ophir, were heard to say that several county residents could have benefited by seeing how every issue has at least two sides.

The conference agenda allowed for mixing sessions on technical aspects of watershed health, watershed education, and watershed council activities, as well as field trips to north coast restoration activities.

Wilken said, "The opportunity to share insights and aspirations with volunteers and professionals from around the state was the most valuable aspect of the get-together, as is often the case in such conferences. The speeches and seminars were of high quality, and will be helpful in addressing Port Orford's needs. We will all be hearing and thinking about water and salmon a great deal over the next several years. The solution is, for now, in our hands. It's too bad that all our local members couldn't attend, but I wouldn't wish the 540 mile, twelve-hour round trip in the rain on any of them."

First I have something to tell you best do it now. The November 23 rummage sale is free - 8:00am till 1:30pm - See you there O.K.?

Monday nite November 18 was pinochle - Ladies high Venita Marstall - Lady's low Maybell Beith - Men's High Clair Stahl - Men's Low Henry Kron. Here is another note - the next card game is December 2 - I was told - men should bring a gift for a boy - put age on it - Ladies bring gift for girl - put age on it. I hope there is a good turnout - kids need presents. No van on November 28 and 29 because of Thanksgiving day.

Now what's coming up - the luncheon November 23 at 11:30am. The rummage sale and the dance at 7:30pm. Membership meeting November 27 at 11:00am - then lunch at the Port and Starboard Restaurant at noon. November 30 Saturday is potluck at 11:30am - come bring your favorite dish.

Here are the volunteers who worked November 14- Greta Carver - Betty Harper - Marge Kyle - Beth Newkirk - June Dennison set up tables, etc.

Oh yes there will be a speaker after the Thanksgiving luncheon November 23 - slides and speech about salmon, should be interesting.

Just a few words about volunteers - Take Leo Welch - He is maintenance and trouble shooter - anything goes wrong he seems to be the one to call - leaks in the faucets - switch won't work - all that kind of things, it's like on call twenty four hours a day - He also paints - well anything he does it - hope he never moves away.

Then there is Clair Stahl - He's the treasurer. That means taking care of the finances - every luncheon - breakfast he is there to handle the money - he also helps with the dishes, etc. so you see the wonderful volunteers I keep telling you about? I'll close now with this;

More often than we ever suspect,

Beep! Beep! Beep!

"What's that noise? Oh, it's the alarm clock, better turn it off! Say, wait a minute. We're retired now, we shouldn't have to set the alarm!"

"Oh, yes, I remember, this is the day we go to Driftwood School to do our mentoring. Better get up!"

That's pretty much what it's like at our house one day a week. It's fun to be a mentor and I look forward to our mornings at the school. I laugh when I think back to our first day. Talk about scared! We had never met the children we would be mentoring and I couldn't imagine what we would do to keep them busy for a whole hour. All I could think of was how long an hour really is. I read the handbook again. The main thing to remember is to try to be a friend to the student. Follow the child's lead and let them choose how to spend the hour, whether by reading, being read to, playing games or just talking. It sounded easy enough, but a whole hour!

Needless to say, we DID survive the first day. Now the hour is gone before we are ready for it to be over. We have two younger children to mentor and in some ways that makes it easier. They are happy to play with the educational games the teacher gives us to use. They like to color and it's fun to help them with the lesson pages for the day.

On the other hand, it seems hard to just be a friend to them. They're used to obeying adults and they are told to go with us, so they do, but that doesn't necessarily make them think of us as friends. Sure, they enjoy the time they spend with us and the individual attention, but I was afraid we were more like teacher helpers than friends. After all, we're trying to develop a friendship that will last a long time and help to ease the growing pains children seem to suffer as they go through the school system.

Then, last week I found out what it's all about. When I got to the school and walked into the classroom, one of our children looked up and saw me and then gave me the most dazzling smile of welcome. She was genuinely glad to see me and I felt so happy I was ready to pop. What a sweet reward!

Mentors are desperately needed in the Port Orford schools. If you're hesitating because you're afraid you won't be able to keep a child busy for an hour, or if you're afraid it won't be easy to get them to think of you as a friend, please give it a try anyway. It may take a while, but I guarantee when the day comes that you get your first welcoming smile from your student you'll think it was all worth while. It's a sweet reward!

Missing From Sixes Store

His name is Grant and he is very much a part of my family and I would like to have him back. Grant has had his first shots and is now over do for his second shots. I don't care why you took him, just please bring him home. I will even tell you where you can go to get one of his brothers or sisters for free. Just please bring him home to the Sixes Store.

Grant is a two month old one half Boxer pup. He is a fawn color with four white feet and a white line that goes straight up his face ending between his eyes. Grant also has a blue collar. If you see him or know who has him please inform Michelle or Marilyn or anyone at the Sixes Store. There will also be a small reward for his return.

Future Computers - Continued

Epson has licensed the right to make compatible drives and they are becoming very popular. Clearly a floppy disk that holds only 1.4Mb is becoming more and more useless as new software packages fill 30, 50, or up to 270Mb!

High Speed Serial Bus: You may not have heard much about this yet but it is another attempt to simplify connections between devices yet allowing them to communicate at very high speeds. This one is still pretty early in the product cycle but looks like it will become a winner eventually.

56kbps modems: You just got your 28.8kbps or 33.6kbps modem and now the 56kbps modems are being touted. This one is even earlier in the product cycle so it's hard to tell whether it will survive or not. It's also hard to know whether it will be able to work on rural telephone lines or not. Keep an ear open but don't hold your breath waiting for this one.

As more and more people begin to use the Internet and use more and more bandwidth, telephone companies are complaining that they designed their wiring and switches for normal, short, voice calls and not for computer calls which can last for hours. MCI and other companies would like to bill according to the number of bytes sent rather than by a flat fee for a given capacity line. If they win, it could make Internet access more expensive.

Any way you look at it, 1997 looks like another interesting and amazing year!

River Bridges Collapse Continued from Front Cover

The most dramatic moment for them occurred at the City's North Fork Hubbard Creek reservoir. Acting Public Work's Director Alan Wagner was lowered onto the dam to remove boards from the weir in an attempt to relieve pressure on the dam caused by high water. The heroic measures worked and the reservoir and dam are still intact! Wagner was assisted by members of the Port Orford Fire Department as well as fellow public work's employees Mark Panozzo and Keith Rowling. They are all to be commended for their efforts.

The City of Port Orford opened an emergency center on Monday night at the American Legion Hall. City Manager Dotti Myers stayed at the hall until 2:00am Tuesday morning.

Korinn Smith ..... 348-2262
Amy Knapp ..... 348-9961

I would like to express my sincerest thanks to everyone for your support during the election.

A very special "Thank You!" to those that helped by displaying yard signs, bumper stickers, writing letters of endorsement, or helping in so many other ways!

Special thanks to my family for their support and the sacrifices they made during the past year.

Elaine Joy

Letter to the Editor

A couple of days ago I thoughtlessly left my wallet lying on a side counter at The Downtown Fun Zone where, being bright red, it was readily visible. There were a number of other customers in the store at the time, and when I returned about forty-five minutes later, the store was quite crowded. As soon as I walked in, Evan said with a smile, "Are you looking for this? We just found it."

Many people had the opportunity to pocket it without being noticed. Port Orford is a great place to live. Thank you all.

Irene Allison

Letter To The Editor

Awhile back a lady wrote you, concerned about people buying lakefront and ocean-front properties and blocking access to the ocean beaches and the lake.

Since 13th Street is being opened up near the lake a stairway and small dock could be placed at this point for the public to use. If this small portion of land is on private property the city could invoke eminent domain for the benefit of the public.

Also I have heard that there is supposed to be a trail or path on the left side of Agate Beach Trailer Park for access to Agate Beach. If this trail exists it could be opened up and marked so the public could have foot access to Agate Beach without disturbing the tenants of the trailer park. The other access is Paradise Point and it is scheduled to be closed.

Clarence D. Smith

Xmas At Hughes House

Friends and supporters of the Hughes House: the annual Christmas Open House is just around the corner. This year's celebration is scheduled for the first two weekends in December. So, when you are baking for family, friends and other good causes, remember the Hughes House and bake a batch of cookies for the open house. Cookies can be left with Voila Cuatt. For more information, call Martha Weaver-Briteil at 332-9775.
