Council Sets Priorities By Evan Kramer

The Port Orford City Council met Monday night and heard from Mayor Gary Doran who thanked those who voted for the police levy.

The council discussed the sewer connection policy for the moratorium. Councilor Jim Campbell said that the council needed a document that says the way it is going to happen. Councilor Jane Cramer said the council needed a sub-committee to draft a policy. Councilor Norm Leeling suggested a compilation be put together of what the council had talked about and what the attorney had said. A sub-committee consisting of Norm Leeling and Jim Campbell will meet and set policy, which will be adopted by the council. The sub-committee will meet on Wednesday, October 11, at 11:00am.

Mayor Doran appointed La Rae Liston as City Clerk. Councilor Cramer made a motion to accept the mayor's recommendation and it passed unanimously. Liston also serves as City Recorder.

The council next considered a needs and issues inventory and sponsor priority list from Coos Curry Douglas Business Development Corporation. The council considered seven different city projects and voted on an order of priority for them. The list came out as follows:

1. Waste water sewer drain field replacement.
2. Water source improvements
3. Inflow and infiltration study (for the sewer system – this concerns water other than wastewater getting into the sewer lines).
4. Police department upgrade – includes new equipment and building renovation.
5. Fire/ambulance/EMS equipment upgrade.
6. Community building remodel.
7. Community radio station.

Councilor Ralph Donaldson made a motion for the council to adopt Ordinance #2000-05 – establishing fees for the licensing and regulation of businesses. It passed 6-0. Robert Warring followed with a motion for the council to accept Resolution 2001-08 as corrected. The motion passed 6-0. This resolution sets business license fees at $48 for businesses operating within the city limits;

$24 for any business which grossed between $400 and $9,999 the previous fiscal year and $5 for any business which grossed less than $400 during the previous fiscal year. Resolution 2001-08 rescinds Resolution 2001-03. There is no longer a fee for amusement game devices including pool tables and video games.

The Ordinance relating to sign fees has not been forwarded to the council from the attorney.

Councilor Norm Leeling gave a liaison report on the Port Orford watershed council. Leeling said the watershed council had unanimously gone on record against brush picking on the city owned property in the North Fork Hubbard Creek watershed. This is currently the city's sole source of water. Leeling asked this issue be on the council agenda in November.

City Administrator Martha Weaver's monthly report to the mayor and city council included an update on the utility audit. Weaver, city treasurer Joyce Hodge, councilor Jane Cramer met with city auditor Rob Wall on October 4 to review the progress of the audit. Weaver estimates in her report that a report on the utility audit will be issued within the next two weeks.

The Stress Solution By Graeme Graydon

Some twenty years ago, I lived in a way which gave me very little privacy and left me with barely any time for myself – in spite of several attempts to delegate or share the load. I never did really solve the problem, but I did intuitively find a way to handle the situation without realizing it. I lived and worked in a small resort set on 160 acres in the Catskill Mountains. Overlooking the buildings was a ridge with a few dense thickets of small trees and hidden within one of these, I found the edge of a huge slab of slate, 2 feet thick, protruding out of the hillside like the beginnings of a porch roof. I immediately began to burrow under the slab, fired by a passion to create a rock shelter. For weeks and then months, I stole away from my real business world, an hour or two at a time, to surrender completely to the demands of building a house out of stone.

As I hollowed out a space under the overhang, I unearthed quantities of dark gray slate with smooth parallel sides, ideal for building a curving wall out a bit from the roof slab with a narrow entrance, like the tunnel into an igloo. Wider sheets of slate allowed me to make a generous fireplace and chimney in the wall. I had never built with stone before. It was a new experience that was absolutely familiar to me. An hour tunneling under the roof and then setting the newly found rock lifted me into another world. I had done this before, with my bare hands, creating a place of safety and comfort with rock and earth. In the Fall, I sneaked sheets of roofing iron up the hill at night to close a roof from the overhang to the top of the wall – and set a length of stove pipe on top of my chimney.

By the time the snows came, it was complete with room to stand, benches of stone for comfortable seating, a grotto with lots of firewood and a raised, queen-sized platform for sleeping – not that I was thinking about sleeping there, it just seemed the right thing to do. Nobody knew about my cave, not my staff, not even my wife. The part of me that was supposed to be the mature adult was a little embarrassed at what the child part of me had done. And so it was, that when I could escape for a couple of hours on a winter night, I would climb the hill, crawl through the tunnel, light a fire and find solace in the leaping flame. For several winters, I used it this way. Sometimes there would be drifts of dead leaves blown in, spider webs and a drip or two from the roof, but it was still my private place – until the night I found it meticulously clean. There was a new broom for the floor, hearth brush and poker, a teapot and mugs, a lovely candlestick, matches and herb teas sealed in preserving jars and several other discreet touches. Months later, a couple of returning guests confessed that they had left the gifts for me and hoped that I wouldn't be upset. Having found their way into my playhouse, what else could they do but play too.

Steens Bill Passes House

Representative Peter DeFazio announced House approval of legislation to preserve Steens Mountain in Southeastern Oregon. The delicately balanced bill designates an expansive wilderness area, consolidates mixed federal and private ownership of land, and protects unique fish and wildlife habitat. The entire Oregon Congressional delegation worked tirelessly to craft this unique legislation in response to Administration threats to designate the area a National Monument.

"It was a long process, but I think the Oregon delegation came together in a unique show of bipartisanship and developed an Oregon-based solution to save a valuable natural resource that is important to all Oregonians," said DeFazio. "I was proud to be part of the process."

Earlier this year, the Secretary of the Interior, Bruce Babbitt, highlighted Steens

Mountain as a potential area for a new National Monument. In response to concerns from some Oregon communities about the impact, Babbitt asked the Oregon congressional delegation to draft a consensus bill to preserve the rare natural area. The bill will designate a significant amount of permanently protected wilderness, a majority of which will be cow-free. In addition, mixed federal and private ownership of the High Steens will be consolidated through several land exchanges. Finally, the consensus legislation protects against the pending threats of off-road vehicle damage and mineral exploitation in the fragile area. Input from local ranchers and the environmental community were considered during the development of the bill.

The bill must still be approved by the Senate before it can be signed into law.

Krieger Declines Debate

Wayne Krieger, Candidate for House District 48, has rejected Barbara Dodrill’s offer to debate the issues before the voters, Dodrill announced on September 28. The previous week Dodrill invited Krieger to publicly debate the issues that directly affect the lives of the people living along the Southern Oregon Coast and neighboring rural communities.

“I am very disappointed with Mr. Krieger’s decision not to debate me,” said Dodrill. “I realize that we both have busy schedules, but we owe it the voters to make time to appear together.”

“As two people running for public office,” Dodrill continued “I believe it is our responsibility to make sure the voters understand the differences in our positions. I believe the best way to do that is through a face-to-face debate on the issues where the citizens can ask questions.”

The Coquille Sentinel, which offered to host the debate at the Coquille Community Building, informed the Dodrill campaign that Mr. Krieger has declined to participate.

Both Dodrill and Krieger will be appearing at various forums in Coos and Curry County in October. While the forums are beneficial in informing voters on the candidates and issues, Dodrill says there are not enough.

Dodrill says she will continue her campaign, meeting with the public, walking door to door and getting her message out because, she says, “I’ve always put people before politics.” “I’ll keep doing that whether Wayne wants to meet the public or not.”

For further information on Barbara Dodrill contact Jill Brunelle, Campaign Manager, at 541-347-2071, fax 541-347-4901, or jill\_brunelle@hotmail.com.

Letter to the Editor,

No matter how you address Barbara Dodrill – mom, sis, auntie, professor Dodrill or friend – come January 2001 she should be representative Dodrill, House District 48.

Barbara knows no boundaries and will be a strong advocate for all people living in the district because she will work and fight for people, not special interest groups and big money.

I have worked closely with Barbara and know she thoroughly studies the issues, listens to all sides and the experts and then evaluates the information before making decisions. Even when faced with difficult issues she always makes her positions and reasons known. Unlike politicians her positions do not change to satisfy the group of people she is speaking before.

Long before she announced her candidacy she was working hard for us. She was one of the first people to urge ODOT to put in the Powers Highway and urged DMV to keep the Coquille office open. She led the charge to get a badly needed new water plant in Bandon.

Seldom do we have the opportunity to elect someone with as many leadership qualifications and diverse experiences as Barbara. She has been a Bandon City Councilor for six years and is an accounting and business college professor. She has dedicated her life to giving back to our community and does so from her heart, not for political gain.

I urge you to join me in voting for Barbara this November.

Sincerely,

Judy Densmore,
Mayor of Bandon

PSA stands for prostate-specific antigen. Doctors use a PSA blood draw along with the digital rectal exam and ultrasound to find cancer in its earliest and most treatable stage. But a biopsy is the only way to know for sure if a patient has prostate cancer, Ginny Hochberg says.

The hospital offers low-cost PSA testing annually or semi-annually as a public service to its patient base. Prostate cancer is the most common type of cancer found in American men, according to the American Cancer Society. The number of new cases diagnosed has doubled during the past 10 years. While it can occur in men of all ages, it occurs more frequently in men over 50 and is most common in men over 65.

Part Time Manager
By Evan Kramer

The Port of Port Orford Commission met in special session on Tuesday, October 3 and the main topic of discussion was a part-time manager for the Port.

Office manager Kathy Sherbourne told the commission that Mike Neilson would draft a report for Greg Baker with Special Districts with the specifics of the job by Friday. Greg Baker is the executive director of Special Districts Association of Oregon and formerly was the Executive Director of the Port of Hood River. Neilson is the part-time manager of the Port of Gold Beach whom Port Orford is considering hiring as their part-time manager. Special Districts of Oregon and Oregon Economic Development Department had proposed the co-management idea. Port commissioner Scott Macdonald said that Neilson was very dynamic and had already earned five times his salary in grants for the Port of Gold Beach. Macdonald said Neilson was a little over qualified for the job. Commissioner Chris Hawthorne said the Port was pretty fortunate that there is a guy with his qualifications in our area. Neilson previously worked for the Port of Hood River.

THE WATCHER

Starring: Keanu Reeves & James Spader • Rated R

FRIDAY ..... 9:15 pm
SAT & SUN ..... 6 pm
MON/TUE ..... 9:15 pm
THUR..... 7 pm

Storyline: Keanu Reeves stars in this thriller as a serial killer who engages his nemesis - a retired FBI agent - in a cat and mouse game, doling out clues as to who his next victims will be. Marisa Tomei co-stars.

Commissioner Dave Knapp said he liked the guy. Scott Macdonald threw out the rhetorical question what if both Ports were competing for the same dollars. Macdonald referred to the position as a part-time manager; not co-management as it had been discussed at the Port meeting in September. Neither the commissioners nor the public had liked the term co-management.

Commissioner Leesa Cobb said we need someone 20 hours a week. The Commission then worked on a list of Port needs including getting a business plan done, a budget, and leasing Port property. The commission will need to write a description for a part-time manager. Neilson will be invited to the next Port regular meeting which will be held on Tuesday, October 17. A message was relayed from Port attorney Randal Tosh telling the commission they better get a manager. Neilson wants a decision from our Port commissioners by the Tuesday meeting and then it will be up to the Gold Beach Port Commission, who meet on October 19 to go along with this plan.

The commission considered increasing maximum vessel sizes for the Port. The current Resolution calls for boats no larger than 42' in length, 13' beam and 25,000 pounds. The new commercial boat hoist is rated at 25 tons. After much discussion the commission settled on the following maximum vessel size: 44' length, 15' beam and 44,000 pounds. They didn't vote on this issue but it will be on their October 17 agenda.

The commission then discussed the new dock project retainage. Some of the concerns with the new dock project they expressed was some of the junk left behind by Laskey-Clifton-located on Dock Road, the electrical room is not complete, the fuel pumps need to be certified and the two boat hoists don't work right. The Port has retained $400,000 in payments to Laskey-Clifton until the project is complete. The commissioners want the hoist speed up to 40 feet per second from the current speed of 18-20 feet per second.

The next Port meeting is on Tuesday, October 17, 7:00pm.

Fire Board Meets By Evan Kramer

The Port Orford Rural Fire Board of Directors met on Tuesday night at the Elk River fire hall.

Brice Wagner asked Chairman Jeff Barnes to read a statement that Wagner had presented to the board. Wagner wrote about the fire rating for his commercial structure in the district and asked the board do something about lowering the fire rating. He said his dairy complex fell into a class 9 rating. Wagner wrote about the combined city and rural capacity of 20,000 gallons of water they could roll to a fire and asked for future testing to get a better fire rating. Port Orford volunteer fire department assistant chief Randy Foster told Barnes the fire department would be more than willing to do what it takes to get a lower rating.

Treasurer Jan Dacayana spoke and reported the district's checking account balance was $3,711.13 and the balance with the Curry County Treasurer was $16,327.92. Chairman Barnes asked that the fire chief or assistant chief give a report to the board every month at their meeting. Randy Foster gave a brief maintenance report.

The board adopted the supplemental budget on a motion by Richard Mijs unanimously.

The board discussed the vacancy on the board created when Brice Wagner resigned. They will run a notice in the newspaper advertising the vacancy and looking for a replacement. The term of office for this appointment will be through June 30, 2001. All five board positions will be up for election in next May's election.

Richard Mijs made a motion to put off for 30 more days the board starting its own fire team and to continue for 30 more days the policy of not driving the vehicles

Board secretary John Johnston briefly discussed the talks between the city and rural board regarding the contract between them. Johnston said there had already been four meetings, each of which had been a minimum of two hours long. He described them as congenial by and large. He mentioned they had discussed policy issues and the policy manual.

The board passed a motion to buy 20 new plastic chairs for the fire station, not to exceed $100 in total.

Candidate Information Online

Secretary of State Bill Bradbury announced that candidate information for the 2000 General Election can now be viewed in the official Online Voters' Guide. The Online Voters' Guide, a web-based version of the state Voters' Pamphlet, can be linked to by visiting the Oregon Votes web site at www.oregonvotes.com.

"We are proud to have both volumes up on the Internet so early in the election cycle," Bradbury said. "We have already heard from Oregonians living as far away as Scotland they are using the online guide to make their decisions. The Elections Division has worked especially hard to get all of the state Voters' Pamphlet information online and accessible early."

This year the online candidate information is expanded to include state candidates for circuit court and district attorney in addition to national, statewide and legislative candidates.

The printed edition of the volume 1 of the Voters' Pamphlet, containing ballot measure information, will be delivered to all Oregon households this week. Volume 2 of the Pamphlet, containing candidate information will be delivered beginning October 18.

The last day to register to vote for the November General Election is Tuesday, October 17.

Payments Bill Approved

Representative Peter DeFazio announced House approval on Tuesday of legislation to stabilize and significantly increase federal timber sale payments to state and county governments. The bill, passed unanimously late Tuesday night, would increase federal aid to rural counties next year by $222 million. DeFazio was instrumental in brokering a similar version of the bill, approved by the House of Representatives last fall, to save taxpayers in Lane, Douglas, Linn, Coos and other Oregon counties from a steep and sudden drop in county revenues. The legislation was approved by the Senate last week, and the bill must now be signed into law the President.

Under the bill Coos and Curry counties will receive an increase of $5 and $7 million respectively.

The bill has the support of the administration. The President has 10 days, not including Sunday, to sign the bill into law.

NCFCC Challenge

North Curry Families' and Children's Center, a non-profit organization dedicated to helping our families and children, is calling all caring folks to step up to support the efforts of the Skateboard Committee to continue to construct the Skateboard Park. The group has been meeting, fund-raising and working for over 2 years to bring this dream to a reality. The group needs more dollars to complete the first phase.

This Skate Park will provide our youth (and any adventurous adults) the opportunity to enjoy healthy recreation in our community. Nationally acclaimed Search Institute's 40 assets essential to a young person's success has shown that the single most important factor for success for a young person is a caring adult in their life. Also critical is that young people need to know that our community believes that they are important. They need to know that the community values youth and they are valued by the adults in the community. This is the perfect opportunity to show our young people that they are important. Feed good about making a difference and make your donations to Chetco Federal Credit Union today.

NCFCC challenges the community to match our $100 contribution to the Skate Park in Buffington Park within 48 hours.
