Mouchawar Vs. The City By Evan Kramer

The recently concluded civil trial of Camille Mouchawar, plaintiff, versus the City of Port Orford, defendant, resulted in a split decision, with the City out as much as $35,000.

The civil trial was held in Curry County Circuit Court with Judge Hugh Downer presiding. Attorney Roger Gould of Coos Bay represented Camille Mouchawar. Dan Holland who was hired by the City's insurance carrier represented the City of Port Orford.

The plaintiff Mouchawar was suing the City of Port Orford for two reasons, one being inverse condemnation. The City was accused of damaging the plaintiff's property at Agate Beach RV Park by opening Garrison Lake, resulting in the loss of three acres of his property. The plaintiff charged that the city employees and its agent began the process of opening a drainage outlet for Garrison Lake in December 1998. The result of that drainage outlet according to the plaintiff was a loss of bluff property. (Editor's note: I reported in the December 10, 1998 edition of this paper about the lake being opened in an article entitled "Bench Washed Away" that the Curry County Road department employees and equipment were used to open the lake on December 2).

The second cause of action in the suit was misrepresentation. The plaintiff charged the City with not informing him about the Mutual Agreement and Order it had with the Department of Environmental Quality. This MAO was a result of the City's sewer drain field being destroyed by heavy surf during the El Nino winter of 1998-99. The MAO prevented the city from making new hookups into its sewer system. Mouchawar was asking for $79,000 in damages for this claim because he claimed the City did not inform him about the MAO and that he would haven't spent $79,000 developing a proposed 50-unit manufactured home park on the property if he had been aware of the MAO and moratorium.

The twelve-person jury found in favor of Mouchawar on the inverse condemnation charge and awarded him $20,000 though he was asking for $120,000 for the value of the property he lost. The jury found against Mouchawar on the misrepresentation claim. The City's insurance carrier is paying for the legal services provided by John Holland and the services provided by the expert witnesses who included ocean scientist Paul Komar, John Allen from the Oregon State Department of Geology and Minerals, and real estate appraiser Charles Thompson. The insurance company will not be paying for the $20,000 inverse condemnation settlement, nor will it pay for Mouchawar's lawyer's fees.

City Administrator Martha Weaver said that Mouchawar's attorney Roger Gould would be submitting his request for fees to Judge Downer this week and that the City will have to pay for them. Gould did submit a list of his fees and it came out to $15,936.00. The next step is John Holland will review Gould's request for attorney fees and then file a judgment with Judge Downer, which will possibly request the fees be lower than requested.

Weaver said she would have to consider whether or not to recommend to the city council to appeal the decision. If the city appealed the decision the city's legal fees would be paid by their insurance company but if it lost the plaintiff's lawyer would put in a claim for more legal fees. Weaver said a city government could not be forced to pay money in a settlement, which would force the City to cut basic services. Weaver said the next step would possibly be an executive meeting of the city council and then a

Service for John Quick 1931-2001

A private memorial service for John Barton Quick, Ph.D, will be held Saturday, October 20 at the Tichenor family cemetery in Port Orford to be followed by a reception at the Senior Center. John, a native of Port Orford, died at his home in Denver on July 19.

John was the great-great-grandson of William Tichenor, a sea Captain who founded Port Orford in 1851. Generations of the Tichenor family are buried in the cemetery beginning with Captain William Tichenor's death in 1887.

John is the author of Fool's Hill (Oregon State University Press, 1995), an affectionate memoir of his childhood in Port Orford in the 1930's and 1940's.

Born in Port Orford in 1931, John was the son of Al Quick and Ellen Tichenor. Al Quick was the owner of Quick's Quality Market, the town's primary grocery store in the 1930's. The family later moved to Grants Pass, where John graduated high school. He later attended the Universities of Oregon, Denver, and Colorado. John received his Ph.D in Communications from Union Graduate School. He also served in the U.S. Air Force in the Far East during the Korean War.

John was a Certified Management Consultant (CMC) of the Institute of Management Consultants and founder of The Quick Company, a marketing and planning consulting firm in Denver, where he resided for the past 19 years. Prior to starting his own company, he worked for eight years as a Senior Consultant for the Arthur D. Little Co., Cambridge, Massachusetts. He was author or co-author of 14 published books that reflect his professional interests.

He is survived by his wife Maralyn Moore, son Jim of Newton, Massachusetts, daughter Margaret Noble of Centennial, Colorado, sister Alida Young of Morongo Valley, California and four grandchildren.

John requested that upon his death a plaque in his name be placed in the Tichenor family cemetery. His feelings for Port Orford are best explained in the final paragraph of his book, Fool's Hill: "Thanks to this book, I can continue to live in Port Orford during the 30's and 40's. All things considered, I'd call it my real home...because it's still the place where things are easy for me, where things are right."

Larry Blount Honored

The Oregon Consortium board of Directors and Oregon Workforce Alliance has honored Larry Blount of Langlois for his outstanding contributions as a member of the Oregon Workforce Alliance. Mr. Blount is also a founding member and chairs the North Curry Families' and Children's Center (NCFCC) board. NCFCC is a One Stop Career and Family Center dedicated to helping families achieve success in their families and their careers.

Blount's award was presented at the consortium and alliance's annual awards celebration held in Pendleton and attended by more than 80 representatives from throughout Oregon. The organization oversees Workforce Investment Act programs throughout Oregon's rural counties and contracts locally with South Coast Business Employment Corporation for program services in Coos and Curry counties.

Blount was recognized for his dedication to workforce development and youth programs in rural Oregon. He has worked countless hours to see that policies and practices are in place that are appropriate for all customers and the community. Also mentioned in the award presentation was Blount's vision to help Coos and Curry counties to develop an outstanding system for serving the area's businesses, employees and families.

Blount serves on numerous boards throughout the region including NCFCC along with board members Laurie Feldhaus, Lyn Barnes, Will Green, Lynne Meininger, and newest board member Jim Harness. Blount has also been chair of the Curry Commission on Children and Families and continues to serve on that board.

For additional information on WIA services, contact the South Coast Business Employment Corporation at 269-1042.

For more information on NCFCC contact 332-1032 or 332-9191.

Flu Vaccine Shipments

Don't panic! Residents of Curry County will be able to receive a flu shot this year! Unfortunately, due to production problems, the first of several shipments of vaccine is not expected to arrive until mid-November. The first shipment is expected to be small; therefore the Public Health Department will be giving the first flu shots to high-risk persons on a first come first served basis during the initial clinics. According to Barbara O'Malley Floyd, Public Health Director, "We request that healthy young and middle age people wait until later shipments arrive to request their flu shot." Ms. Floyd states, "There will be plenty of vaccine, though most of it will arrive in late November. She explains that waiting until November or December is not a bad thing; the vaccine takes about two weeks to take effect, and begins to wane after several months. Flu season generally peaks in January or February, so people receiving their shots in November and December will be protected during that time.

The groups at highest risk for complications of flu include:

Persons 65 years of age or older.

Residents of nursing homes and other chronic care facilities.

Adults and children with chronic illnesses as diabetes, kidney problems, blood disorders, or whose immune systems are compromised.

Children and teenagers (age 6 months to 18 years) who are receiving long-term aspirin therapy.

Women who are in the second or third trimester of pregnancy during flu season.

Continue checking the newspaper and listening to the radio for information about the vaccine arrival and flu clinic dates. When the vaccine arrives, we will notify you! Please be patient.

Visitor Center News

During the months from Jan. 2001 thru Sept. 2001, the Battle Rock Visitor Center had 8766 visitors walk through the doors and 6649 of them signed the visitors' logbook. The visitor center volunteers have put in approximately 1677 hours during this period. This makes an average of 43 hours per week, 7 days a week, that the center is open to the public. Without the volunteers our Battle Rock Visitor Center would not be possible.

$209.59 in unsolicited donations were made to the visitor center during these months. These donations help with the utility bills from the center and also any mailings that need to be done.

Some of the highlights for the year at the visitor center have been the Volkswalk, Whale Watch Week, where about 600 migrating whales were observed, the Cycle Across America Group, the 4th of July Fireworks, the Gyro Copter Crash, the Walk for the Rogue Native Vigilance held at Battle Rock after the dinner at the Community Center, and the Day of Prayer and Remembrance Memorial Service, where hundreds people, local and visitors walked or drove to Battle Rock Park to honor the lives lost due to the terrorist attacks at the Pentagon in Washington D.C. and the World Trade Towers in New York City.

Travel Notes IV

By Graeme Graydon

One of the strongest impressions I have as a visitor to this culture came from watching the people who were lining up with me in the Charter Flight area of Bochen Airport. I was startled by the appearance of the young men, their faces, their coloring, their build. I had always thought that the long narrow face, the dark features, the smoldering eyes and almost expressionless looks of the men painted by El Greco, Goya and Velasquez were some kind of distortion. Not so, here they were, the Portuguese of the Azores, where over 500 years of comparative isolation and little infusion of new blood, had left some of them unchanged. Early Portuguese navigators came across the Azores on their way back home to Portugal – carried fortuitously by favorable winds. Faial was settled in 1460. A Flemish nobleman set up a Dutch community alongside the Portuguese a few years later. The island was soon exporting wheat, cheeses and dyes. The sixteenth and seventeenth centuries saw attacks by pirates – even Sir Francis Drake bombarded them. The Spanish occupied for a few decades and then were thrown out. Faial became an important whaling center right up till a few years back. Early aviators and the Pan Am Flying Clippers used the island as a way station. It was the center for all the Trans-Atlantic telephone cables. Part of the Normandy invasion fleet gathered here. These days a U.S. warship may slip in after dark, refuel, and be gone before daylight. There are big changes going on – I saw the same thing on Picco – foreigners building summer homes, causing the need to bring in laborers from the Portuguese colonies and former colonies. I came across some Croats hoping to put their lives together again. It is harder to get anyone to do anything. I met a lady from Lisbon who works for a big U.S. drug company. She said that it was not Socialism – it was just that the politicians in Lisbon think of their poor, distant cousins as needing help – so the people of Portugal are taxed and life on Faial is getting more and more comfortable. Faial used to be self supporting in food, but now they are importing the corporate products from the big island of San Miguel. Guess what? The same crappy tomatoes that we get.

This is my last night in the city of Horta. After a nine-hour workday, I cleaned up, picked up my e-mail at the Internet store and wandered around the marina where, amongst all the beautiful sailboats, I came across an oddball craft. It was a Yellow Submarine, about 30 feet long, flying the German flag. I moved as close as I could, absorbed in its clean lines – a towed head popped up the hatch – was I interested? - and would I like to come aboard? I negotiated the three-foot water trap between the jetty and the gleaming yellow deck. Take your shoes off and come on in – I lowered myself through a two-foot diameter hole (no steps or hand holds) and landed in the belly of the beast. We introduced ourselves and Joachim gave me a 15 minute immersion course in what he called, his toy – in reality a superb research vessel not yet a year old and just going through its sea trials. Beautifully finished with banks of instruments, GPS, bottom recorder, controls, and the whole bow area panoramic window. He switched on the lights outside – clouds of shimmering fish everywhere. Earlier in the day, Joachim had found an old anchor at 500 meters, the working depth limit of his sub – which he modestly admitted was built by himself. I was enthralled – it is so easy for me to remember that I'm still a kid. Later on I partook of an excellent dinner – fresh grilled albacore. I was still glowing enough to break one of my rules. I ordered a vinno verde from Portugal. It was so refreshing and clean that in my enjoyment, I forgot about the alcohol part. So here I am, somewhat overindulged, trying to get this story ready for faxing tomorrow morning at the boutique downstairs and then I have three days left to finish my task on Faial.

Volunteer Fire Department Breakfast

Everybody feels something about the attacks on the World Trade Center and Pentagon and the overwhelming loss of firefighters and police officers in New York. Many people want to do something about the situation. One thing all of us in Port Orford can do is support our Volunteer Fire Department this Sunday morning by attending the pancake breakfast fundraiser. Let's make this the biggest turnout ever for the fire department's pancake breakfasts and show our respect for the people who perform this dangerous job for us. $5 gets you an all you can eat breakfast and chance to meet the firefighters and see some of the equipment they use. The money raised on Sunday will go towards purchasing equipment to improve communications with other emergency service organizations. See you there.

The Cathie Ryan Band

On Tuesday, October 30 at 7:30pm the Savoy Theater is host to a very special concert featuring Cathie Ryan and her band. Cathie Ryan is one of Irish music's most respected singers. She has been honored as Irish Traditional Female Vocalist of the Decade by The Irish American News in Chicago and The New York Daily News places her "firmly in the upper echelons of Irish music singers." She is also a captivating performer who surrounds herself with stellar traditional musicians. On this tour she is joined by Port Orford's own Hanneke Cassel who regularly dazzles audiences with her fiddle virtuosity and bright stage presence, the renowned Celtic instrumentalist Greg Anderson provides deft guitar and bouzouki accompaniment, and one of the shining lights of the Irish music and dance sensation, Riverdance, Dubliner Ivan Goff will add the beauty and verve of flute, whistle, and uilleann pipes.

Since bursting on the Celtic scene in the mid-80's, during a seven year stint as lead singer of the Irish supergroup Cherish the Ladies, the Detroit-born Ryan has earned rave reviews not only for the beauty of her voice, but for her insightful songwriting and intelligent vocal styling.

Ryan has released three critically acclaimed CDs on Shanachie Records. The concert will feature songs and tunes from all three plus, for the hometown fans, Hanneke Cassel playing selections from her own great new release, My Joy. This is Cathie Ryan's first appearance in the Southern Oregon Coast. Don't miss it. Come out for an evening of hauntingly beautiful Irish ballads and rafter-raising jigs and reels.

Tickets are $15 and available at the Downtown Fun Zone in Port Orford, Rogues Gallery, the Bookworm, and Soakers in Gold Beach. For more information visit www.cathieryan.com.

Blood Drive Information

The Red Cross does not have a database of blood donors from the Langlois, Sixes, and Port Orford area. The Langlois Lion's Club, the Port Orford Ambulance Volunteers, and Curry Family Medical have offered to recruit donors for the blood drives. A minimum of 60 to 80 donors is needed.

If you would like to be a blood donor please sign up. Sign up sheets are available at the following locations in Port Orford and Langlois:

Port Orford City Hall and the library, Curry Family Medical Clinic, the Paradise Café, the Wheelhouse Restaurant and the Downtown Fun Zone; the Sixes Store; the Langlois Market and the Langlois Library.

Live Recording at Paula's

The Pete Lenihan Jazz Trio will be playing on Saturday night, October 20, at Paula's starting at 7:00pm. The three-member trio includes Pete Lenihan, Ted Owen and Ryan Collins. Eddie Houck and Faron will produce a live recording of Saturday night's music. Join us.
