Council Honors Volunteers By Evan Kramer

The Port Orford City Council met on Thursday night and started off their meeting honoring many community volunteers. Three groups of people were chosen for volunteers of the month including the community building volunteers, which Mayor Gary Doran read off first. The volunteers are as follows: Al Affonso, Evan Kramer, Paula Cracas, Eric Carter, Carol Malley, Frank Smith, Dean Dunlap, Ray Johnson, Malcolm Young, Steve Abbott, Paul Bodtke, Emily Francona, Rick Francona, Sally Johnston, John Johnston, Susan Lincoln, John Lincoln, Clyde Woodley, Duane Byers, Wayne Groff, Maybelle Groff, Jan Dacayana, Chet Dacayana, Sara Dacayana, Donna Roselius, Weld Champneys, Breuer Construction, Rudi Breuer, Barbara Breuer, Ty Breuer, Roy Butts, Karen Butts, Marvin Hardegger, Betty Hardegger, Norm Malmberg, P.O.E.T, Norm Smith, Donna Smith, Veryln Thomas, Anita Thomas, Vance Noble and an anonymous donor.

The second group of recognized was the Battle Rock Park Visitor Information Center volunteers. They are Jim Billings, Cathy Boden, Frank Cramer, Jane Cramer Priscilla Harris, Kay Neal and Will Witt.

The Mayor then recognized the Story Stew readers including Nella Abbott, Elma Champneys, Weld Champneys, Paula Cracas, Nancy Dowdy, Ed Dowdy, Sally Johnston, and Susan Palmer. All the volunteers were given a tee shirt specially designed by Joan Geiser. The tee shirts say Port Orford Community Spirit on them and include the design on the two entrance signs to town. They were paid for with $200 donations from Klamath First Bank and Chetco Credit Union; and a $50 donation from Coos-Curry Electric. Ray's Place Market has agreed to donate refreshments for the annual volunteer recognition party.

In keeping with the spirit of the evening the City public works crew were named as the employees of the month. City Administrator Martha Weaver said the public works crew worked until 11:30pm one night to fix the big water leak on Lakeshore Drive. Public Works Director Allan Wagner thanked the crew for their hard work.

Mayor Doran moved into appointments and started with the Planning Commission. Doran said that Rick Francona had resigned from the planning commission to serve his country and appointed Doug Jamieson to fill the vacancy. On a motion by Councilor Ralph Donaldson the council sustained the mayor's appointment. Doran reappointed Joyce Spicer Kinney to the planning commission for another term. Doran appointed Tom Hamilton to the 5-year water-sewer budget committee and that appointment was also sustained by the council.

Mayor Doran said he would like to represent the City on the CEDAC (Curry Economic Development Alliance Corporation) and on a motion by Ralph Donaldson the council sustained the appointment of the mayor to the CEDAC board.

The council heard a skate park update from Mark Scott of Dreamland Construction and Diego Cruz. Cruz said they needed five days of no rain to pour concrete. Mark Scott said he wanted to start on the skate park, which will be located in Buffington Park the Monday after Thanksgiving. Martha Weaver spoke about a proposal to have the Dreamland employees work as city employees during the skate park construction to save money on bonding, insurance and reporting on the construction. She said the city had received a $29,000 grant from State Parks for the project and besides

One with the Wind By Graeme Graydon

Often when I have been parked above the Port in a good southerly – good enough to rock my old van and make the roof panels tweak noisily, there has been a bunch of seagulls sailing madly in the updraft. The stronger gusts rock them around a bit, but they slide sideways or do a steep little climb, knife point wings smoothing the turbulence, moving, always moving. They keep together in a wide column, wheeling in and out and around for no other reason I'm sure, than pure enjoyment – dancing on the wind. From time to time, one will peel off from the dance and sweep back to make a rather abrupt landing in another group of gulls who are hunkered down on the road. Now you would think that dancing-in-the-wind at the Port would be reserved strictly for seagulls. Not so, there has been, for years, an outsider who does things quite differently, right in the middle of the dance. It is easy to see – just look for the speck that doesn't move – it is a hawk. I thought it was a Red Tail but I'm assured on authority that it is a Swainson's Hawk. I don't know if it is a male or female, so I'll call him "her." Today, I saw her again, this time above the motel, maybe 30 feet above the office roof – I drove up to get a closer look. She was riding on a moderate southerly updraft – pinned in on spot – absolutely fixed there. I watched for 10 minutes, she didn't move more than 2 inches in any direction, seemingly suspended in mid-air. Quite amazing! Hummingbirds hover but it takes wing-effort, white shouldered kites do a sort of helicopter thing, beating the air with their wings. This hawk doesn't seem to do anything to float in the wind. Around her, the gulls have tight, professional-looking flight-suits, with never a feather out of place. She however, in blatant contrariness, looks a bit tatty around the edges, keeps her 'elbows' tucked in close to her body, - a blocky wad of untidy feathers with a small tail that flips up and down like some mechanical gadget. But she does this incredible thing, she stays totally unmoved in the teeth of the wind.

So there she is, a minority of one, joining the others in the wind. They dance all over the sky, she just hangs there. I suspect that when the gulls socialize at the water's edge, they make remarks about this one who doesn't know how to dance, who is not like them, and who doesn't go away. And then I saw this incredible metaphor. Jonathan Livingstone would understand. As a proper seagull grows up, it first has to fight the wind, and eventually gets to master it and finally, conquers it. But for all of its life, it must match itself against the wind. The hawk on the other hand, like some old, enlightened sage, hasn't just mastered the wind, she has become One with It. She doesn't fight, doesn't match herself against anything – she joins in effortless communion, she absorbs it, is not separate at all. And there she rides in the midst of constant change – unchanged. It must feel like being in the center of the cyclone, total calm with all hell raging around. Perhaps she is in meditation and finds stillness there. One of the things that I want to do after I die, is to take the body of a seagull and dance in the wind – right here on our Coast. Now I want to go one step further – I want to feel what that hawk feels – to be One with the Wind.

What is Diabetes?

Diabetes is a disease that affects the body's ability to produce or respond to insulin, a hormone that allows blood sugar to enter the cells of the body and be used for energy. Call your physician to find out if you should be screened for diabetes.

Recycling Awareness Week

This is an important year to celebrate because this year marks the first time since the Department of Environmental Quality has been calculating Oregon's recovery rate that the generation of trash and the amount disposed has declined. The year 2001 marks the fourteenth anniversary of Oregon's Recycling Awareness Week.

Oregon now has goals to prevent the total amount of waste generated from increasing by 2009 and also to prevent the amount of waste generated per capita from increasing by 2005. In order to reach the new waste prevention goals, Oregonians will need to practice as many sustainable behaviors as they can such as borrowing or renting items that are not frequently used; repairing broken items instead of replacing them; and continuing to practice good recycling and composting habits at home, school and the office.

Consumers can impact the environment in both positive and negative ways through the choices they make. Some of the questions we must ask ourselves when looking to make a purchase are:

Do I really need this or is there a more productive way to spend my money. Can I borrow, rent, or buy this used rather than new?

Is this product made to last? Can I repair it if it breaks? Will the manufacturer take it back to use the parts when it can no longer be of use? Is this product recyclable when I no longer can use it?

Is the product made locally, does it have excessive packaging, is the manufacture of it harmful to the environment?

Think carefully about what you buy; packing materials make up 19% of the material in Oregon's landfills. Almost 52% of the material in the landfills is unwanted products.

Senior Center Xmas Bazaar

The Port Orford Senior Center will have the Annual Christmas Bazaar in its own building on Jackson Street on Saturday, December 1.

There will be lots of handmade items ideal for Christmas gifts, and plenty of delicious baked pies, cakes, cookies and breads.

A raffle is planned with a framed oil painting by a local artist and a Christmas doll locally made. Other events include three cakewalks, and coffee and pie will be served all day. There will be dolls in all sizes, homemade applesauce, plants and grab bags.

Our new cookbook featuring local favorite recipes is here at last!

Come see why we are so excited from 8:00am to 4:00pm on December 1.

Walking for Health

Walking is catching on as an easy, inexpensive way to stay fit, decrease health risks, and increase a positive outlook on life. And now, Curry Family Medical makes it fun and profitable with walking cards and continual prize drawings for those who track their progress, according to Cathy Boden, coordinator of the North Curry Community Health Grant program.

The first drawing is set for noon, January 2, 2002, in the Curry Family Medical clinic.

"Sometimes it's hard for folks to just start walking," Boden says. "So we've made it easy with the walking cards."

The cards are available free at Curry Family Medical. The walking cards sport outlines of little feet, she explained.

"Fill in a foot for every half hour you walk," Boden says. "After you complete the card, drop it off at Curry Family Medical for your chance at a prize. The more cards you fill in, the greater the chance to win, both the prize and good health!"

Studies have shown walking at least 30 minutes a day increases mental outlook, boosts energy, strengthens muscles, reduces injury, and increases circulation, which helps keep your body functioning at its best, Boden adds.

Walking also decreases cholesterol and cuts the risk of heart and lung disease and cancer. It lowers blood pressure, reduces your chance of osteoporosis, and relieves depression, along with helping you lose weight, Boden says.

For more information or to receive a walking card, stop by Curry Family Medical, 525 Madrona in Port Orford or phone Cathy Boden at 541-332-1042.

Port Report By Kathy Sherbourne, Port Manager

With the stormy weather, there hasn't been much activity around the dock. We were fortunate to have good weather the week before though, while the fuel system was being corrected and brought to code. The State Fire Marshal was on site for an inspection and passed the fuel system in every area.

There was good fishing at North Beach that week and Bill Cobb on the Rosalie set a new dock record for a day's salmon catch with 46. The old record was 32, which stood for 30 years or more. Bill has been recently hospitalized and we all send best wishes for a speedy recovery.

Julia Barnes, wife our lead-man, Dave Barnes, has recently had surgery. We wish her well and know she'll be up and around in no time.

There will be a meeting with Senator Bill Fisher, Monday, November 19, in Gold Beach, at which time we will have the opportunity to speak with him about Port issues and concerns.

Needs and Issues have been addressed for this year. Funding was secured for the Strategic Business Plan. The next project in line is the sewer pump station and water lines, which will be addressed at the beginning of the year. With the support of the Regional Investment Board, we have been able to work our way through back issues and can begin looking forward.

With the holiday season upon us, I'm sure everyone is thinking about family and friends, taking pause to remember and gather. Happy Thanksgiving to you and yours from the Port commissioners, management and Port staff.

Letter to the Editor,

Next year the people of Oregon will elect a new Governor. I have been studying the candidates since January when Beverly Stein told a small group in Gold Beach that she planned on running. I was very impressed with Beverly at that time. Later several people from that group were invited to attend her official kick off rally on May 20 in Portland. I attended that rally along with over eight hundred shouting, stomping, cheering supporters.

Some of the things I learned was that Beverly has a law degree as well as a degree in political science. She has served three terms in the state legislature and eight years as Multnomah county chair. As county chair she was CEO of the state's third largest government budget. Along with her education and experience she also has a very real concern for the well being and success of every person in Oregon, man, woman, and child. She will work hard for improvements in health care, education, living wage jobs, and over all economy.

Beverly will be Governor for all of Oregon, not just the big cities and the I-5 corridor. Please join me in supporting Beverly Stein for Governor. Also please feel free to call me if you want more information or want to help. My number is in the book.

Harold A. Whitson, Brookings

Langlois Fire Department

The Langlois Fire Department along with 30 other agencies participated in the Curry County Tsunami Warning Exercise on October 30, 2001. This practice drill was the first full scale exercise to be done countywide. Langlois Fire Department participation included using emergency vehicles and traveling to all of the low lying areas that would be affected by a tsunami generated by a Cascadia Subduction Zone earthquake of magnitude 8-9. These inundation zones have been determined by a computer generated digital model and printed on maps by the Oregon Department of Geology and Mineral Industries. In the Langlois Fire District, the inundation zones include the areas surrounding Floras Lake, and several private ranches west of Highway 101. The fire department determined that, in case of a warning, it would take approximately two hours to notify all of the affected residents of the need to evacuate. If you have questions concerning your home in relation to these inundation zones, you can contact Curry County Emergency Services Coordinator Mike Murphy at 541-247-3208, or stop by the Langlois Fire Hall next to the Library on December 11, from 7:00 – 9:00pm to view the maps.

Save Those Receipts!

The parents of Pacific High School Graduating Class of 2002 are working on Project Graduation, which provides for and alcohol and drug free evening of partying and entertainment for the entire class, the night of graduation.

This year Rays Food Place in Port Orford has volunteered to donate 1% of the receipts from the Port Orford store collected by the senior class. The parents of the senior class would be very grateful to members of the Port Orford community that donate their grocery receipts to the decorated Project Graduation coffee cans that will be placed in a variety of business locations throughout Port Orford and at Pacific High School.

Letter to the Editor,

In reference to Gayle Wilcox's letter of praise of the local merchants, I would like to add the owner of Pet Pals, John Panozzo, to the list. John gives merchandise and money and more. A few of his recent efforts were: judge at the Pet Parade; cook at the Arts Festival; and decorator of the Community Center for the Sock Hop, the 150th Celebration and the various Halloween events.

Sincerely,

Carren Copeland Leuthe

They ARE Out To Get You! by Valerie Jean Kramer

You may not have heard about the UCITA, the DMCA, or the SSSCA but you should. They are three laws which the "big guys" have or want enacted to allow them to maintain their stranglehold on print, music, movies, and other media.

Under traditional law, you have had the right to enjoy the materials you bought. You could protect your rights by making backups. Under certain circumstances you even had the right to use excerpts from the material, such as for a book review, etc. Even scarier to the money moguls, you could write an operating system and software like Linux and give it away for free. What a horror!

Under these new laws, many common electronic devices such as computers and tape recorders would either be illegal or severely restricted in their capabilities as would programs such as Linux. While

I'm sure these laws benefit someone, I don't think they benefit the common good! You can read about them and form your own opinions at the following sites.

that between $1,200 - $2,500 was in the skate park bank account. Mark Scott said he was doing a favor for Diego because his company usually charges more for skate parks. Councilor Jane Cramer made a motion that the council directs Martha Weaver to employ Mark Scott and Dreamland as city employees for building the skate park. The motion passed 4-0.

Enterprise Zone (EZ) representative Ed McQuade updated the council on the Zone. He said the EZ was a state program designed for rural areas that need help. They provide zones for companies to invest in and give them a three-year tax abatement on property improvements. Retail businesses are not eligible for Enterprise Zone tax abatements. McQuade said our EZ expires on June 30, 2008 and that he is having problems getting people to relocate to the EZ. He said he can't get leads and that most leads want to be located on the I-5 corridor. McQuade said the EZ is in the County Strategic Plan and that next year he hopes to have a better report for the council.

Lon Berubi spoke to the council under citizen's concerns. Berubi is a resident of King Street in Port Orford and was speaking to the council about the change of addresses for homes on King Street. The issue with changing King Street addresses began when the fire department responding to a call on King Street went the wrong way because of the numbering system. Berubi said people living on King Street have had their addresses for many years and that the change would be costly to residents. Berubi suggested an alternative, which would be changing two of the addresses on King Street. Martha Weaver said the addresses were being changed in accordance with the city ordinance but Berubi reminded her that many other streets in the city are not in accordance with the ordinance. Gayle Wilcox said the fire department would be happy to do whatever is best for the residents of King Street. She said the department just wants something that makes sense. The council concluded the discussion and will send letters to the residents of King Street that they are re-considering the renumbering. Martha Weaver will get together with some of the residents of King Street, the fire department and work on a new proposal.

Mayor Doran read a Recycling Awareness Proclamation. Doran said we need to encourage people about recycling. He said that curbside recycling is provided free of charge.

Martha Weaver spoke about the Adopt a Street Program. She said the town needs basic maintenance and that the city has a small public work's department. The council will consider Weaver's draft document of the Community Partner Program before taking action.

Jane Cramer said the council had a mess last year at budget time regarding employee health insurance benefits. She said she wanted an early start on dealing with health insurance benefits for next year's budget. A health insurance committee was formed to look at the issue consisting of Jane Cramer, Jim Campbell, two city employees and staff. City Recorder LaRae Liston will set up a meeting in mid-December.

The council considered a recommendation from the Council Personal Subcommittee to contract out janitorial services. One of the city public work's maintenance workers has resigned and this is one way of not replacing him for now. Ralph Donaldson made a motion to authorize the city manager to advertise for a person to perform janitorial duties for the city on a contract basis and it passed 4-0.

Ralph Donaldson said the council meetings were too long. He said candidates were needed to run for council next year and that people have been saying the meetings are too long. Donaldson suggested holding workshop meetings to discuss issues in advance of the regular meetings.

Ralph Donaldson made a motion that the council have the attorney file a notice of appeal in the Camille Mouchawar case. The motion passed 4-0.

The council's next regular session is on Monday, December 10.
