Rural Health Grant

By Evan Kramer

The Curry Health District Board held their monthly meeting in Port Orford last week at the Senior Center. The Board normally meets in Gold Beach. Board members present included Brian McNulty, Barbara Stover, Gary Anderson, and Doug Jamieson as well as the district's management council consisting of R.G. Williams, Gary Short (chief financial officer) and Ginny Hochberg. Brian McNulty who had missed several meetings due to illness said if it was financially feasible more things would be offered in Port Orford. He said the district needed enough people to go the facility (Curry Family Medical). He recommended having articles in the paper related to health and written by doctors.

Steve Wilson, the pharmacist at Shindler's Drug Store in Bandon, spoke about the possibility of a different kind of pharmacy in Port Orford. The city has been without one since May. Wilson spoke about his efforts to place an automated drug distribution system at the Curry Family Medical Clinic. He said the machine, which he later described as being three feet by three feet in size, would dispense drugs and labels. The medicines would be pre-loaded and handle 90 different medications. Wilson said there was no Oregon statute in place for this technology but the State Pharmacy Board was working on the situation. Wilson said a technician; working for him at the clinic would dispense the medications and handle payments or insurance claims. The prescriptions for this machine would be handled through Shindler's and then sent back to the machine via computer. Wilson said the concept could happen by the end of the year.

Wilson was asked about opening a pharmacy (with a pharmacist) here in conjunction with the Health District. He said it wouldn't happen because pharmacists are in short supply. He said we need to find a pharmacist who lives in Port Orford. Wilson said there was one other site in Oregon with the automated drug distribution system and it is in a jail. This would be the first one in a medical clinic. Wilson described how it would work is the clinic would write a script and then send it to Shindler's. He would fill out the paperwork and send the information to the machine via computers. He said there would be three different bar codes used with the medications and it would be a more bulletproof system than a walk-in pharmacy. Wilson stressed there was no time frame for the machine's installment. Wilson said the drugs would be pre-packed and come in specific amounts (for example 30, not 34). Wilson said he didn't want to hype this machine too much as it may or may not happen. The initial prescription would be handled through the machine but refills would be phoned in to Shindler's and then sent by courier to the clinic the next day.

Next up on the agenda was the Curry Family Medical office hours which are 8:00am to 5:00pm Monday through Thursday and closed for lunch from 12:30 to 1:30pm. The Friday schedule is 8:00am to 12:30pm. Physician Assistant Carol Milne said she is often there after 12:30pm on Fridays. Dutch Heinauer asked why if we pay taxes we don't get the same service as Gold Beach and Brookings. He said Brookings doesn't pay taxes for the hospital district. R.G. Williams said Brookings pays for 50% of the revenues collected by the district.

Gary Anderson referred to the clinic as a drag on the district and that people in Port Orford didn't use it. The clinic averages 373 visits a month and needs 470 to be profitable. Doug Jamieson

Out to Sea
By Evan Kramer

The Port Orford effluent disposal system project construction took a big plunge forward on Sunday afternoon. The opening goal for Sunday was to pull the 2,200 feet of 12-inch diameter black plastic pipe off the shoreline at Agate Beach and out to sea. On Saturday three boats including a converted ferry boat now serving as a barge and two tugboats from Coos Bay arrived off the shore and got ready for Sunday's adventure. There had been some delays in the drilling progress last week but HDD drillers "punched" through the ocean's rocky bottom on Wednesday.

People milled around Sunday morning on the bluff overlooking Agate Beach and on the beach waiting for the pipe to be moved. Many searched for agates or walked their dogs or vice versa. At 1:30pm the pipe was connected to the bigger of the two tugboats (The Triton) with help from a person on a jet ski taking the rope from the pipe to the tug. Then the tug pulled the welded pipe off the sand and out to sea. The second tug (The Captain Tenino) was used to capture the other end of the pipe and pull it over to the barge. A private fishing boat had brought the diving crew from Associated Underwater Services to the 180-foot long barge, which is a converted Washington State ferryboat. A crane on the barge was used to help position the pipe so it could be directed toward the opening in the ocean floor. The next step was pulling the pipe back to shore through the opening in the ocean floor.

SHN Project Engineer Steve Donovan said this was the first ocean outfall being constructed in Oregon in 24 years. He said the visibility at the drilled opening was only six inches but the divers were well experienced in this kind of work. Donovan said once the pipe was pulled out to sea there was no turning back. The estimated time to pull the pipe back to the construction zone on the bluff was two hours once it was through the hole.

Steve Donovan said on Monday afternoon that the pipe was successfully pulled through the hole and pulled back to the construction site. The crew finished this portion of the work at 11:00pm on Sunday night. He said the crew was now prepping the ocean floor for the concrete mats, which will hold the diffuser unit down. Donovan said things went really well and there was no stress on the pipe. Hurray for Port Orford!

Hopeful Economic Outlooks By Jay Stoler and Paula Cracas

Port Orford Chamber of Commerce

Visions for the future of Port Orford were shared by three-dozen members and guests of the Port Orford Chamber of Commerce and the Point Orford Heritage Society at their second annual mixer. Elected officials in attendance included Curry County Commissioners Lucie LaBonte and Ralph Brown, Port Orford City Council members Jim Auburn and Emily Francona, and Port Commissioner Ed Dowdy.

Chamber social director Grace Bonnell was the coordinator and hostess for the evening and introduced the speakers including Milt Nelson from Friends of Cape Blanco, Paula Cracas representing the Port Orford Senior Center, Dana Amarisa marketing representative for the Port Orford Arts Council, and Reg Pullen from BLM. Port Orford Chamber of Commerce President Ronn Kerr and Vice President Chuck Schaumburg also spoke.

Milt Nelson emphasized the importance of the historic "crown jewels" of North Curry; the Cape Blanco Lighthouse, the Hughes House and the Coast Guard Museum. He praised the Highway to History publication and all of the America's Wild Rivers Coast (AWRC) advertising, noting there were over 22,000 visitors to the Cape Blanco Lighthouse last year.

Port Orford Chamber of Commerce President Ronn Kerr said he hoped that a good portion of the transit lodging tax (TLT) would be permanently dedicated to advertising and promotion, plus a commitment of TLT funds yearly to boost the general awareness of Port Orford outside of the south coast.

Port Commissioner Ed Dowdy said his vision for the future is a 50,000 sq. foot facility where the PPS building and bone yard are now located and some sort of facility located where the Port shop and storage building are that would take advantage of the spectacular ocean vista from that vantage point.

County Commissioner Lucie LaBonte said that the Curry County Commissioners and the Del Norte Supervisors were meeting regularly and recognized and supported the cultural and arts community of the AWRC area and would continue to create programs with financial Excerpted financial information from that report is being mailed to all Cooperative members.

Highlights of the report are as follows:

The Independent Auditor's Report dated September 19, 2003 stated in part, "In our opinion the consolidated financial statements referred to above present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of Coos-Curry Electric Cooperative, Inc., as of December 31, 2002 and 2001, and the results of its operations and its cash flows for the years then ended in conformity with accounting

The Cooperative ended the year with $68 million of total assets, $35 million of equities (51.47%), and $33 million of liabilities (48.53%).

Total electric plant increased by $4 million.

Income taxes payable were reduced by $3.4 million, due to tax strategies recommended by other independent tax consultants.

Net operating losses of $2.2 million were recognized. This loss was due to the board's strategy to maintain load by deferring rate increases needed to offset wholesale rate increases from the Bonneville Power Administration.

A loss for "other than temporary impairment" of investments related to the sale of DBS franchise to Pegasus Satellite Communications was recorded.

Letter to the Editor,

Friday September 19 was the ninth annual relay called “The Run to the Rogue” held each third week of September by the Siletz Indian People. The run, which starts in Siletz Oregon, continues down the coast for about 234 miles and up the Rogue River to Oak Flats near Agnes. It is meant to commemorate their “trail of tears” and to honor their ancestors who were forced to leave their homelands of Southern Oregon and Northern California.

The Port Orford Art Council hosted this year, making this the sixth annual pot-luck dinner for the runners and community to share. The added enjoyment of Community Music Night makes this a special gathering and next year we may have some drummers from Siletz to round it out!

Every year the participation has grown as our community continues to honor and recognize the history, we once were ignorant of, or reluctant to acknowledge. The Siletz Confederated Tribes have given our community two videotapes that briefly document their tribe’s history and “The Run to the Rogue”. These videos will soon be available at the Port Orford City Library.

To all who gave their time, generous spirit, food, and music, thanks so much. It was very organized this year! Thank you, Susan and John Lincoln, Susan Shannon, Paula Cracas, Claire and Roger Button, Cathy Boden, Al, and all the singers and musicians. Also, thank you Sentry Market and the Schools for the “sign board” welcomes! They noticed! Mayor Doran, thank you for reading the proclamation in support of the Run. The show of support from this community is valued and has helped the Runners to feel compassion is out there for their long effort to connect to their ancestral past.

Joan Geiser

Mammogram Month

Gift sachets, custom-crafted by Rogue River AppleWorks, will be presented to all women who get mammograms in Curry General Hospital or in the Brookings Clinic during National Breast Cancer Awareness Month in October.

The America Cancer Society continues to recommend mammograms annually for women 50 and older, in tandem with exams from professional health providers. Self breast exams also are recommended monthly. Early detection is the best protection, says Joyce Mathis, coordinator of the Curry General Hospital Breast Health Network.

Walking cards – designed to track how many minutes you walk – can be picked up for free at Curry Family Medical. Participants mark off one illustrated foot for every half hour they walk. When the feet are all marked off, the cards can be turned into the clinic for the next prize drawing.

Rural Health Grant Continued from Front Page

said the clinic had a shortfall last year of $143,000. Carol Milne answering a question about what are we getting at the clinic said her main goal is women’s health issues. She said the clinic has seen more women than were seen before. Milne said she had done more with children. Other activities at the clinic include the Kumedin clinic, a full scale lab available thanks to twice a day courier service with Gold Beach, diabetic teaching, lectures on breast cancer, a depression workshop, the free PSA screening, women’s cancer screening and flu shots coming up in October. Milne said she would like to see the clinic open seven days a week but it didn’t have the volume.

Dr. Tom Pitchford said no one was turned away from the clinic. He said it costs a lot of money to have a new x-ray machine at the clinic and 5-6 full time employees.

The Hospital District supports Cathy Boden as outreach coordinator for North Curry County. She has worked on monthly hikes and other wellness issues including the free men’s and women’s health screenings.

Gary Short next spoke about Curry Family Medical receiving Rural Health Clinic designation. This allows small rural areas to get special reimbursement. Short said it costs the clinic $105 per patient visit. Short said to qualify for the maximum reimbursement the doctor must see 4,200 patients per year. The Nurse practitioner needs 2,100 visits per year. Short said the clinic had a sliding fee schedule based on the federal poverty level. The Rural Health Clinic designation became effective on September 1 of this year. Short said if they get the maximum reimbursement the clinic would receive $100 per Medicaid visit and $66 per Medicare visit. Currently the clinic gets reimbursed $44 per visit from Medicare and $38 per Medicaid visit. Short emphasized the more patient visits the more reimbursements. He said the free clinics don’t count toward the reimbursement total but the district wouldn’t stop having them. Short said this area pays $100,000 in taxes to the District and that the five-year bond issue is now done. He said we need more people to go to the clinic. The $100,000 tax money could be available to then improve or expand the clinic or bring in more sophisticated machinery if we get the maximum RHG reimbursements.

The Board next talked about Cal-Ore life flights and Port Orford Ambulance. Linda Foster talked about PO Ambulance having a lack of personnel. She said they only have 4 EMT’s and they’re getting tired. Port Orford Ambulance has been providing emergency service in town since 1952. Foster said they run the ambulances with certified drivers and that they can’t afford to hire full time personnel. She said they have been in communication with Cal-Ore (they run the ambulance service in Gold Beach and Brookings). Foster said Port Orford Ambulance wants to stay but they need help!

R.G. Williams said in reference to life flights that they have to transfer patients from a hospital.

Port Orford Mayor Gary Doran said he would like people to talk up the clinic. He said we need to encourage people to use the facilities. Doran said he had seen a lot of improvement over the years at the clinic.

Cancer Screenings draw 178

More than 178 men participated in free prostate cancer screenings countywide, Sept. 18-20, for National Prostate Cancer Awareness Month, thanks to the Curry General District and funding from the Curry Health Foundation. The Brookings Clinic tested a total of 72 patients. Curry General Hospital tested a total of 61, while Curry Family Medical tested a total of 45.

In Gold Beach, the first 55 men to get their prostate cancer screenings were also treated to free cholesterol, HDL and glucose testing, compliments of the Gold Beach Rotary Club. Organizers said the addition of the cholesterol tests helped bring in twice the number of men, compared to last year’s screening. Abnormal findings totaled about 17 percent this year, compared to just over 10 percent in 2003, Terry Randall, Curry Health District lab director, reported.

The Curry Health Foundation contributed $4,000 in funding for the screenings, while the Gold Beach Rotary contributed $1,000. Abbot Diagnostics and Randy Butler of the American Cancer Society office in Medford provided screening support.

Private businesses or trade associations wishing to arrange for employee men’s or women’s screenings in the future can phone for more information: (541) 247-3187.
