For the Good of the Many By Evan Kramer

The Port Orford Public Library's fall book sale is this weekend on Saturday and Sunday at the Community Building.

In addition to the thousands of books for sale at the Community Building there is a special program this year going on next door at the American Legion Hall on Saturday. Books don't just come from bookstores or online businesses and there's a lot more to them than that the people who publish, print and distribute them. They all have to start in the fertile mind of the writer or writers and then be good enough for someone to take a chance on printing them. The Port Orford and Langlois Libraries are presenting six authors on Saturday who will talk about their books and read from them.

One of those writers is Port Orford resident Gary Carter whose new book, "For the Good of the Many", has received the Military Writer's Society of America Silver Award for fiction for 2007.

The Military Writer's Association of America (MWSA) is an association of more than eight hundred authors, poets, and artists, drawn together by the common bond of military service. Most members of MWSA are active duty military, retirees or military veterans though there are some lifelong civilians who have honored the military through their writings.

The awards are given out once a year under many categories including military fiction. A gold award is given for the story deemed best of all those submitted and also silver awards are given out including three this year. Besides military based books Carter writes science fiction and poetry and will share information on how to get published. Carter is also an accomplished gardener and makes great stepping stones for your garden. His turn to speak is at 11:00am.

Other authors who will be participating in the "Off the Cuff with Local Authors" program include best selling author Jayel Gibson whose most recent book is entitled "Dragon Queen" An Ancient Mirrors Tale." Her many books are available on Amazon.com and deal with an ancient magical world of dragons and wizards. Gibson will lead off the program with her talk and reading at 10:00am.

Jack Randall is a writer working in many genres from poetry, plays, non-fiction and fiction. His talk at 1:00pm will involve explaining the process he works with to make each individual copy including the artwork. Port Orford Librarian Tobe Porter said that because of Jack Randall this program was being put on. He had talked about a presentation on how he works and then it evolved into one with six writers.

Shirley Nelson is another of the writers in the program. Her latest book is North Curry Elder Wisdom, Local Elders Speak Out on Life, Interviews 2003-2007. Nelson is a local history buff and will no doubt share some of that perspective with people. Shirley and her husband Milt are interested in lighthouses and recently traveled to Michigan to see many of the lighthouses in that state. Nelson will discuss her books at 2:00pm.

The last two speakers are on the program husband are Tim Palmer and Ann Vileisis. Tim Palmer will hold forth at 3:00pm. He is the author of numerous books including "Pacific High" about his and Ann's trip from Baja California to Alaska traveling along the coast range in a variety of conveyances from a van to a kayak. Tim Palmer's most recent book came out last year and is called "Rivers of America". Palmer is one of the leading writers about the rivers in this country and is both an exceptional writer and photographer. Many of his books are available on Amazon.com. Pacific High is one of my favorite books and well worth reading.

Ann Vileisis' second book will be released on October 24 and she will be talking about it. The title is "Kitchen Literacy: How We Lost Knowledge of Where Food Comes from and Why We Need to Get It Back" and the timing for this book couldn't be better. There has been a large and growing emphasis on organic foods in this country. A big change has occurred along the way and now there is also an increasing interest and desire for locally grown and produced foods. Vileisis' book is a history of food in American from 1790 to the present day and shows the changes from a society and country where individuals produced most of their own food to one where we produce little of our own food. What we eat can be from anywhere in the country or the world and the book explores how the connection to what we eat has been lost. Things are changing now but if you read the labels on most foods they will tell you the ingredients but not where the food comes from or how it was produced. More and more people want to know where their food came from and how it was raised or grown; thus the ever growing popularity of farmer's markets.

Letter to the Editor,

In a letter from a couple of storekeepers from the fair village of Brookings, the CCEC board is commended by them for "recognizing the weakness of their earlier decisions, and reversing their votes". This regards the board's decision to proceed to upgrade the power line to Brookings at a cost to CCEC members of approximately 42 million dollars. They certainly should be commended for delaying this expensive decision until credible evidence was presented revealing the negligence by past boards and management in maintaining this power line. CCEC personnel have always had the capability to replace rotten poles and cross members on this line and yet it wasn't done.

More commendable, and of greater long-term value to CCEC member/owners, is the management changes made by this board. Competent management is now in place, employee morale is much higher, and members can trust that the best decisions are now being made on their behalf.

Another very positive change made by this board has been the elimination of health insurance not only to themselves, but also the burden of subsidizing the health insurance of defeated and retired board members. This has resulted in a savings to the owner/members of over 100 thousand dollars a year.

Now if they would open the meetings to the owners again, they would be deserving of even more commendations.

How To Foil The Flu By Valerie Jean Kramer

We're coming up to flu season once again. Every year 5% to 20% of the US population gets the flu, more than 200,000 are hospitalized and 36,000 die. And that is just in a normal flu year. The 1918 "Spanish" flu killed 650,000 Americans! You never know what the next flu season will bring.

If you're an at-risk person or have close contact with the public (like retail sales people, teachers, etc.) you should consider getting a flu shot. A few dollars can not only save you a lot of misery but keep you from spreading the joy to many others.

Another thing you should do is to make sure you and your children know and practice good hygiene. You've often heard about a kid who "brought some illness home from school." It's a common scenario. Kids interact with many others, often have poorer hygiene habits, and may have fewer immunities than adults so they are a good way for diseases to spread. With the concerns about a return of SARS or some other serious epidemic, the time to begin forming good habits is now!

You can infect others beginning a day BEFORE you show any flu symptoms and for up to five days after you become ill. Thus you could be infecting others before you even know you're sick yourself! This is another good reason to practice good health habits at all times.

It doesn't require a lot of effort to reduce your chances of infection. Simple hand washing (soap and warm water for at least 20 seconds or else clean with an alcohol-based hand cleaner) and the use of protective masks, gloves, and/or gowns when appropriate are among the best ways to discourage the spread of a respiratory virus.

Another important step is to unlearn a widespread myth. DO NOT cover your mouth and nose with your hand when you cough or sneeze! That only spreads the germs to your hand and then to everything you touch! Instead cover them with a disposable tissue. Even covering with your upper arm or sleeve is better than using your hand. You may also want to consider wearing a surgical mask to protect others. Be sure to clean your hands after coughing or sneezing. (A pocket full of alcohol-based wipes can be very handy.)

Here's the CDC's six suggestions for preventing illness:

- 1) Avoid close contact with people who are sick. When you are sick, keep your distance from others to protect them.
- 2) Stay home when you are sick to prevent others from catching your illness.
- 3) Cover your mouth and nose (as described above.)
- 4) Clean your hands often (also described above.)
- 5) Avoid touching your eyes, nose or mouth.
- 6) Practice other good health habits such as getting plenty of sleep, be physically active, manage your stress, drink plenty of fluids, eat nutritious food, etc.

Men's Health Screenings

No appointments are needed when Curry Family Medical opens its doors on Thursday, Oct. 11, for its traditional prostate cancer screenings. Free blood tests and free digital rectal exams will be offered from 9:30am to 4:00pm. Curry Family Medical Clinic is located at 525 Madrona St., Port Orford.

Health providers will draw blood to be tested for the Prostate Specific Antigen (PSA), a marker that is specific to the prostate. When used in conjunction with the digital rectal exam, the PSA is a useful measure for diagnosing and managing prostate cancer, according to the American Cancer Society. Men between 50 and 75 should be screened annually. Patients with a history of prostate cancer in close family members are advised to begin screening at 45.

The screenings are made possible with support by Curry General Hospital and the Curry Health Foundation. Refreshments will be available. For more information, phone (541) 332-3861.

Police Report by Chief Creighton

Creighton@popd.org

Tip Line: 253-6271

09-26 Police took a report of theft of gasoline from a residence on 7th Street.

09-26 Police were called regarding two juveniles selling things under the flag of donations. They were both cited into juvenile court for theft by deception.

09-27 Police arrested a male subject for harassment and Disorderly Conduct. He was cited to appear and released.

09-28 Police took a sex abuse case and after the initial investigation determined it was committed in another jurisdiction the case was referred to the Curry County Sheriff's Office. It was then determined after another interview that the crimes actually were committed in Port Orford. A Curry County Deputy cited one male subject for furnishing alcohol to minors and several other charges are pending in this joint case.

09-29: Police responded and assisted Fire and Ambulance with two juveniles who had fallen and received injuries at Nellie's Cove. The children were removed and transported to the hospital by Port Orford Ambulance.

09-29 Police responded to a motor Vehicle Crash with injuries at Idaho and Ninth Street. One male Juvenile was arrested for DUII, and the case is pending further investigation for additional charges.

09-30 Police received a complaint that someone was burning trash illegally on

"Coastal Magic"

Author Matthew Humphrey will discuss his new book, Coastal Magic, at 11am this Saturday, October 13, at Gold Beach Books. The book, Humphrey's second, is a story about the adventures of children growing up on the southern Oregon coast.

According to Humphrey, "The book is a children's reader for all ages, meant to be read aloud; and it is an adventure story, like Tom Sawyer or Anne of Green Gables, celebrating the humor and mischief of boyhood."

The 204 page book features a dozen large illustrations by New York artist Ronald Chironna, who Humphrey praises for his "Normal Rockwell-style of capturing human interaction which, along with his keen sensitivity to Oregon's particular hues and colors, make Ron the perfect illustrator for Coastal Magic."

Humphrey, who is also a musician and composer, was born in Bandon, and now lives in Portland with his wife, Cindy.

Illustrations from Coastal Magic will also be available Saturday in greeting card form, along with copies of Humphrey's musical CD, Shepard Psalms.

Admission to the presentation is free and open to all ages. Gold Beach Books is located on Pacific Highway 101 and First Streets in Gold Beach.

CCEC News

The Board of Directors met last Friday for their regularly-scheduled monthly meeting and then met with members at a scheduled Town Hall meeting in Port Orford.

Roger Meader, General Manager/CEO reviewed the financial reports with the Board. "Our margins were way ahead of budget 3 months ago, but now we're right on," he told the Board. Revenue is lower than we thought and is being watched closely. The cooperative has had 70 new services less than projected due primarily to the economy being slower than expected. "We need to continue to watch and be concerned about trending," cautioned Meader. Next month, staff will present the 2008 budget and a series of financial forecasts.

The Board reviewed options for collecting payments that included in-house functions and outsourcing (through lockboxes). Staff recommended utilizing the new software available which would require the installation of scanners in each of the 4 area locations that would be able to immediately scan bills and checks received and transfer the money to the cooperative's banking institution through a fiber optic connection. "The system could be functional within 45 days, providing greater value to our membership and to our organization," Eden told the Board.

The Board formally approved a policy that removed Board members from the cooperative's medical benefits package, saving the cooperative over $100,000 per year. Directors are eligible to obtain health insurance benefits through COBRA for up to 18 months in accordance with Federal law and must pay 100 percent of that coverage under COBRA.

The Board also approved a new policy that defines duties and standards of conduct and performance for members serving on the Board.

In response to a letter the cooperative received from the City of Brookings, the Board authorized General Manager/CEO Roger Meader to set up a meeting to discuss the City's investigation into starting an electric utility to serve their needs. While Meader mentioned that the cooperative was preparing the information requested, he declined to discuss the matter in more detail at the Town Hall meeting, citing the desire to discuss the issue first with the City of Brookings before discussing it in public.

Meader also discussed the wholesale power outlook and renewable energy prospects at the Town Hall meeting, presenting graphs of various load growth scenarios that described how much energy would be available through the new Bonneville Power Administration

Bird Watchers

Bird watchers across the northwestern United States can help chart the impact of global climate change and other factors on feeder birds and have fun at the same time. Participants in Project FeederWatch, a citizen-science project at the Cornell Lab of Ornithology, have already documented changes in the distribution and numbers of feeder birds over the 20-year history of the project. Anyone can contribute observations during the winter months.

“Monitoring birds over time is the only way to understand the impact of climate change, habitat alteration, and other factors influencing bird populations,” said ornithologist and project leader David Bontar.

FeederWatchers help to document changes in the abundance and distribution of birds by simply watching and counting the birds at their own feeders.

Each season brings new information about bird populations. For instance, data from volunteers have revealed increased sightings of Anna’s Hummingbirds along the Pacific Coast and more Northern Flickers throughout the region. Less severe winter weather and an increase in backyard feeders may be helping the hummingbird survive at the northern limits of its winter range.

On the down side, some finches are being reported by fewer participants in the region each year. The Evening Grosbeak, formerly one of the Top 5 species most often reported by FeederWatchers in the northwest, is experiencing a drastic, mysterious decline. This large finch was #41 on the list of most common feeder birds last winter, with only 13% of the 536 FeederWatchers in the region seeing the species. Evening Grosbeak numbers are declining across the continent, with no clear reason for the changes.

What will the coming winter bring to our bird feeders? The 21st season of Project FeederWatch gets underway in November and runs through early April 2008. People of all ages and skill levels are welcome. To learn more about Project FeederWatch or to register, visit www.birds.cornell.edu/pfw or call the Lab toll-free at (800) 843-2473. In return for the $15 fee ($12 for Lab members) new participants receive the Feeder-Watcher’s Handbook, an identification poster of the most common feeder birds, a calendar, complete instructions, and the publication Winter Bird Highlights, featuring project results.

“FeederWatchers across the northwestern U.S. have helped create the world’s largest database of feeder-bird populations,” says David Bontar. “To understand the effects of global climate change and other factors on birds, we need new and veteran participants let us know what they are seeing in their own yards and neighborhoods.”

Fish and Wildlife Commission

The Oregon Fish and Wildlife Commission will meet Friday, Oct. 12 at the department's Salem headquarters, 3406 Cherry Ave NE. The meeting begins at 8 a.m. and proceeds chronologically through an agenda available at <http://www.dfw.state.or.us/agency/commission/minutes/>

The Commission is expected to act on a proposal that would change gear and reporting requirements in commercial crab fisheries. Among the changes proposed are rules that would reduce the time period for permit transfers, ease buoy tag replacements, and require log book reporting so both the industry and department could better understand industry operations. Staff will also brief the Commission on permit stacking options which would enable commercial fishermen to adjust crab pot limits.

The Commission is the policy-making body for fish and wildlife issues in the state. The seven-member panel meets monthly. Agenda item exhibits may be requested by calling the ODFW Director's Office at 800-720-6339 or 503-947-6044. Agenda items also can be found on ODFW's web site at www.dfw.state.or.us/agency/commission/minutes/.

Public testimony is held in the morning immediately following the expenditure report. Persons seeking to testify on issues not on the formal agenda may do so by making arrangements with the ODFW Director's Office, at least 24 hours in advance of the meeting, by calling 800-720-6339 or 503-947-6044.

Voter Registration Deadline

County Clerk Renee Kolen reminds Curry County residents wishing to vote in the November 5 special statewide election, that they need to register by October 16. Registered voters that have recently moved or changed their mailing address must update with the election's office.

Voter registration cards are available at your local post office, bank, library, on-line at www.co.curry.or.us/Clerk/ or contact the county clerk's election office so they can make arrangements to get you registered. Ballots packets will be mailed out to registered voters between October 19 and October 23.

Ballots are available for those voters leaving town prior to October 19. If you need help in registering or have not received your ballot packet by October 26, please call Kolen's office at 541-247-3297 or toll free at 1-877-739-4218.

wine, cheeses, fruits, etc., - all served in doggy dishes, of course!

Stop by and take a look at our "Wall of Dogs". Beaver Rickle (of Pampered Pooches fame) has decorated the lobby with photos of lots of local dogs and a few unknowns, doggy paraphernalia, and stuffed puppies everywhere. It's adorable. We plan to have information available (and maybe actual dogs) on who's available for adoption through the shelter, and how you can help.

We guarantee a good time to anyone who comes to see the show. Please come celebrate with us!

"Dalriada" Winner

The drawing for the lead crystal glass sculpture "Dalriada" that was donated by local artist Hugh McKay was held on Friday evening Sept. 28th at the Port Orford Arts Council office. Though there was a small turn out for the reception that included cake and refreshments, the highlight of the evening was the drawing of the winning ticket by Kyle Bayard son of Jason Bayard one of our local skaters. Kyle took his job seriously and with little prompting pulled out a ticket... drum roll please. The Winner is Paula Cracas of Port Orford. When contacted she could hardly believe her luck. Congratulations Paula!!

All proceeds from the sale of tickets went to the PO Skate Park Addition Fund. The committee and skaters working toward this addition have greatly appreciated the support and donations that have been made. Thank You All!!

Driver Safety Class

An AARP Driver Safety class (55 Alive) is scheduled for Monday and Tuesday, October 22 and 23, from 9:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. each day at the Port Orford Senior Center, 1536 Jackson Street.

Square Dance Lessons

The Beachcombers will start beginning square dance lessons this coming Sunday, Oct 14, from 2:00 - 4:00 at the Beachcomber's Cove on Nicholson Dr., north of town. ### Property Tax Bills

Curry County's 2007-08 property tax bills are expected to be in the mail by October 15.

Under Oregon Law it is the property owner's responsibility to make timely property tax payments whether the tax collector has a correct mailing address or not. Failure to make timely payments because you have not received your bill will likely result in interest charges on late payments and loss of early payment discounts. Curry County Treasurer and Tax Collector, Isabella Brock's office may be reached at (541) 247-3305 or 1-866-298-0307.

Mammograms? See Alice!

Women needing eligibility checks or information about free mammograms in Curry County can get the answers they need especially easy this month during Breast Cancer Awareness Month, according to Alice Hammermeister, coordinator of Curry General Hospital's Breast Health Network.

Created more than a decade ago by Curry General Hospital, the Curry Breast Health Network continues its mission in the public eye through October with free counseling sessions to help any Curry woman get access to breast and cervical cancer screening.

Hammermeister will host a session in Port Orford from 10am to 2pm on Tuesday, Oct. 16, at Curry Family Medical.

According to the American Cancer Society, women, 40 and older, should have a screening mammogram every year. Current evidence supporting mammograms is even stronger than in the past, an ACS spokesman says. In particular, recent evidence has confirmed that mammograms offer substantial benefit for women in their 40s.

"But mammograms are not a hundred percent correct every time," Hammermeister adds.

A mammogram will miss some cancers, and it sometimes leads to follow-up procedures such as biopsies, that turn up benign results.

Mammograms for older women should be based on the individual and the state of her health, Hammermeister says. "Age alone should not be the reason to stop having regular mammograms.

"As long as a woman is in good health and would be a candidate for treatment, she should continue to be screened with a mammogram," says Hammermeister.

Oregon Marine Reserves

Oregon's Ocean Policy Advisory Council (OPAC) has held numerous public meetings along the coast to develop a proposed network of marine reserves within Oregon's territorial sea. This work is under the direction of Oregon's governor Kulongoski. The Port Orford Ocean Resource Team has participated in several of these meetings and recognizes the need to monitor and participate in public processes that affect our interests in ocean and coastal resources on which we depend.

The current process calls for a nomination that elicits marine reserve proposals for OPAC review. Individuals, organizations, or agencies may submit nominations. The nomination period begins in January 2008 and ends in April 2008. OPAC has not provided direction on the number of reserves they plan to establish.

The Port Orford Ocean Resource Team is an organization established in Port Orford that allows our community to engage in a community-based process for a marine reserve nomination. This allows the community and the fleet to select and propose sites that are reasonable for our fishing industry, keeping our fishing industry, community, and working waterfront healthy.

There is agreement that neglecting this governor's process may result in a network of marine reserves, nominated by parties outside of Port Orford, in adjacent waters off Port Orford that may be detrimental to our industry, due to lack of community input in the process.

Reserves are used a marine resource management tool. They are a proactive approach to preserve for the future, not a solution to an existing problem. Marine reserves allow for much needed scientific research, provide insurance for the future, and promote localized fisheries benefits.

Our directive board endorses a community-based approach to find a viable solution for Port Orford. It is necessary for Port Orford to continue its community process, to enable our community to be ready to respond to the OPAC timeline.

POORT has begun an outreach strategy to the community through an informative letter and short survey through the mail. The surveys are designed to guide POORTs' interaction with the community at large. There will be a series of public meetings conducted throughout the nomination period to inform the public on marine reserves. POORT is planning a more involved outreach process designed for more direct user groups like commercial and recreational fishermen. This will include personal interviews and focus group meetings.

For any questions or comments, please contact POORT at 541-332-0627 or via email at poort@carrollswb.com.

Letter to the editor,

I attended the Port Orford Town Hall meeting this evening where new CCEC Manager Roger Meader clearly, pleasantly, openly discussed the content of the last Board meeting, including items from what used to be "Executive Session." Most members of the Board of Directors also attended. I found the meeting informative and useful, and was able to have my questions answered. Roger Meader is even meeting with CCEC employees after Board meetings to report on Board activity and answer employee questions!

I heartily recommend attending the next local Town Hall meeting to get to know the new manager and the Board members of your Electrical Co-op. You will have an interesting evening and can have your questions answered by the people who have the answers.

Jo Rieber
